Government and Honors

First row: D. Stanley, H. Ridgway, J. Topinka, B. Reich, J. Payne, J. Spritzler, W. Lee. Second row: J. Donnelly, G. Blaich, B. Blanchard, J. Blair.

Palaeopitus

Palaeopitus, the senior executive committee of student government, is composed of eleven members: the four officers of the Undergraduate Council, President of the Senior Class, Presidents of the Interfraternity and Interdormitory Councils, Chairman of the U.G.C. Judiciary Committee, and three members elected at large from the U.G.C.

Whereas in the past, Palaeopitus has seen its role as primarily one of administering Dartmouth traditions, this year's group has placed greater emphasis on coordinating activities concerned with the academic and social reform of the College. Serving as a gadfly as much as anything else, Palaeopitus has attempted this year to bring important and controversial issues to the attention of the Dartmouth Community.

Interfraternity Council

The Interfraternity Council consists of the presidents of the twenty-four fraternities at Dartmouth College. As the coordinating body of all fraternity activities and the main liaison between the fraternity system and the College, the Council this year passed several important measures, such as the spring rush system, a modification of the old I.F.C.-J.C., which called for an autonomous J.C. within each house, and a renewed effort to open up the Dartmouth fraternity system to other areas of the College community so that the system might become more than just a social appendage of the College. The operations of the Council are implemented through four committees: executive, hums, special events, and rush.

The officers of the 1967-68 Interfraternity Council were: Jim Donnelly, President; John O'Shea, Vice-President; Bob Thomas, Secretary; and Dolph Highmark, Treasurer.

The Interclass Council was created last spring in the latest reform of student government. It was hoped that the smaller size of the council would enable it to operate more effectively as the student senate than the unwieldy Undergraduate Council it replaced. The first year has been for the most part a search for self-identity and purpose—sometimes frustrating, sometimes fruitful, but always of significance for the future of student government.

Generally speaking student government at Dartmouth has been service oriented. This is a constructive and worthwhile function, but insofar as student government should represent views it has been generally lacking. In order to overcome this deficiency, the Interclass Council sponsored a student referendum on campus issues. This referendum included questions on social life, academic life, and financial aid. Every undergraduate student and faculty member received a copy of the poll and the returns were almost a hundred percent.

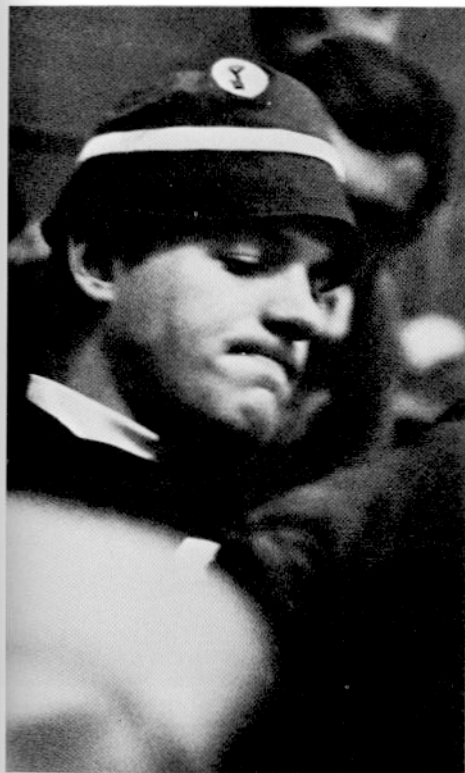

During the winter term, the Interclass Council members have been gathering all relevant data in those areas about which students have voiced the most concern. With this information we hope to make constructive proposals for change where change is needed. One such area concerns social regulations. Our efforts have been pointed toward the establishment of a student faculty committee to completely rewrite the rule book. Our hope here is that if students take a large part in making their own rules, then the student judiciaries will not be put in the hypocritical position of enforcing rules they do not believe in, and students themselves will be more willing to abide by those rules.

Such has been the first year of the Interclass Council. Hopefully our work will be of significance for those who follow our way. Certainly it has been an interesting experience for us.

This year's Green Key continued the organization's role of serving the College. We began by ushering at Commencement and then in the fall proceeded to orient the 71's into the Dartmouth Community. We then decided to focus our attention on the problems of the Key. We investigated several areas of the campus and decided to initiate new services involving the Chest Fund and alumni relations. We also spent much of our treasury in helping sponsor organizations like D.I.S.C. and Eranos.

Interdormitory Council

I.D.C. officers: Paul Mitchell, Treas.; Dave Stanley, President; Al Lake, Vice-Pres.

For years the I.D.C.'s role on campus has been to meet the freshmen, buy them their first beer, unify them under a beanie, and teach them how to build bonfires one tier high than the year before. This is not to say that we have given up this role; indeed, under Nick Perencevich, the bonfire program enjoyed its greatest success in recent years this past fall.

The point to be made, however, is that the I.D.C. is expanding its responsibility into new areas of campus and dormitory life. This is most apparent in the establishment of the autonomous, intradorm judicial systems. The procedural kinks inherent in any program of this type are slow in straightening out. However, the enthusiasm with which the students are meeting the challenge gives confidence that success is just ahead. The key to this program is the ability of the students to prove their maturity in enforcing College regulations and maintaining a decent dorm environment.

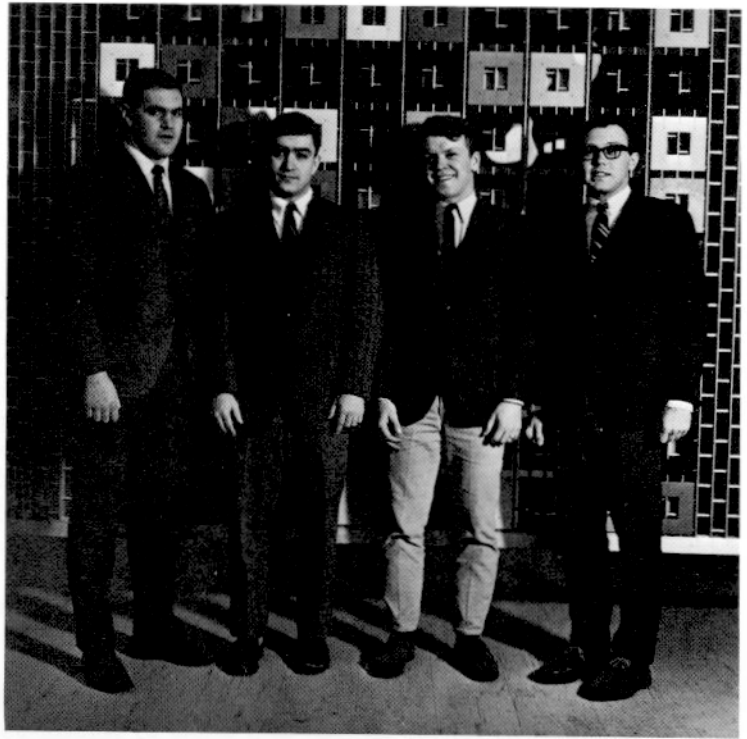

A major problem for the I.D.C. for the past several years has been its program of deficit spending. With each bonfire costing in excess of $250, the need for financial stability is great. Despite the failure of an attempt to set up a counterfeiting ring, steps are being taken that should put the I.D.C. on firmer ground before next fall.

Programs within the dorms in both the social and academic realms have expanded. Through the Dean's office, treasuries have been established giving the dorm chairmen money with which to plan mixers, discussion groups, talks by members of the faculty, courses in the Experimental College, dinners, and other events. In a similar vein, ten dorms have been informally paired with "sister" dorms at Mt. Holyoke in an attempt to establish a rapport through mutual planning of events and projects.

All in all, the I.D.C. can look back on a year of some accomplishment. Conditions within the dorms are improving and opportunities for making the dorms more than a place to hibernate are increasing. Despite this progress, many problems such as the selection of dorms to be taken for housing dates on big weekends have yet to be solved. None the less, meeting of the I.D.C. are no longer plagued by failure to achieve a quorum, and the I.D.C. members as a whole seem confident that the new responsibilities now in their hands will be met eagerly.

Committee Chairmen: George Ross, Jr., Dorm Conditions; Nick Perencevich, Bonfires; Jon Hanshus, Const. Review; Donald Syracuse, Special Events.

The Dartmouth chapter of Omicron Delta Epsilon, an honor society in economics, meets with speakers bi-monthly to discuss current topics in economics not covered in the department courses. This year we plan to continue with a survey started last year to evaluate the courses and teachers of the Economics department. Through this survey, we hope to be able to present to the department and the students a fair critique of the courses offered.

Senior Fellows

Senior Fellowships for independent study are awarded to men of proved intellectual competence and demonstrated maturity who can assume much of the responsibility for their own education. There is no Senior Fellowship "program." If a man has a project that encourages both breadth and depth, he may well spend his whole time on it, though he will be expected to read in other areas. He may, if it is in his interests, complete his major. He may take courses or audit courses. The program for each Fellow is tailor-made to fit his needs and interests. Each Fellow works under the light supervision of the Direction and his faculty adviser. In May, each Fellow gives a report on his year's work. The awarding of a Senior Fellowship is one of the highest honors the College can confer on an undergraduate.

The Dartmouth

The Plant.

This was the watchword of the 1968 Directorate. It was the word which motivated our every thought and action from the moment we took over until the moment we left. It was our greatest burden, our biggest worry, and our most significant achievement.

On September 23, 1968 THE DARTMOUTH printed its first edition on its own press and in doing so, joined the elite of American college newspapers who are totally independent and who do their own printing. It was the realization of a dream editors of THE DARTMOUTH had wished for almost since the newspaper was founded, back in 1799.

It had been a long, hard struggle, which oddly enough, all began in a gas station in the spring of 1967 when we were casually informed by our long time printer that he could no longer handle the paper. Then followed two months of intensive research into every conceivable type of printing method, long hours of consultation with local printers and officials of the College, telephone conversations with New York, Boston, and Chicago, and weeks of sleepless nights.

At last, at the end of spring term, the agreements were made. Sid came with us from his former post and agreed to be our linotypist and plant foreman, and Ira, who had worked with us some five years earlier, left his job to become our pressman-compositor. We found a press exactly suited to our needs at the Goss Co. in Chicago and got the rest of the necessary equipment from two large printing warehouses in New York City, one in Brooklyn, the other in Richmond Hill.

From that point on, nothing seemed to go right. Delivery of the press came early, and we were not ready to receive it. As a result, its installation was delayed. Delivery of the rest of the plant came over two weeks late, and we were barely ready to begin by the time of our first issue. For the first two weeks we worked long hard hours at our new shop on Allen Street. Schader learned to do page composition and Green learned to use the Ludlow machine. Sid and Ira worked nearly 20 hours a day. But somehow, we managed to make the streets.

Our new product was beautiful—and everybody said so. Over the summer we had graduated from a small sized College paper, to a full-size broadsheet, the same size as the New York Times. We increased our body face from 7½ point to 9 point and the paper was a delight to read. We changed our headline face from the much-loved Bodoni, to the older and more stylish Cheltenham. We widened our column width 1 pica and instead of a column rule, put 18 points of white space between columns. When we saw the final product we were delighted—we were even happier when several professional publishers told us our layout style was considered as “optimim” by most of the men in the industry.

But printing is only one side of a newspaper; and it is the side which most people care least about. The more public side of any newspaper is its content, and in this area we moved ahead as well, building on the tradition established by the 1966 Directorate.

Journalistically, THE DARTMOUTH took great strides forward in 1967-68. We covered the campus thoroughly and well. Our pictures were bigger and better, thanks to Carl Japikse and his hard-working photo staff. Moreover, we were not afraid to go beyond the campus on issues that affected it. George LeMaistre wrote the finest news story of the year when he went to Flemington, N.J., to cover the Stockholders meeting of Eastman-Kodak, Inc.

In 1967-68, THE DARTMOUTH made itself heard outside the limits of the campus. We split the Ivy League when we wrote a statement urging unrestricted undergraduate deferments. Brown, Penn and Cornell agreed with us and signed our statement. The rest of the league did not, and we appeared on the front page of the Times, as well as in Newsweek and Time, as a result of our work. We made the national press again in May of 1967 with our invitation to George Wallace.

So technically and journalistically, we improved. At the end of the year we gave our alumni award to Bill Leonard of CBS News, Lew Callaway of Newsweek and Fritz Beebe of Newsweek. And we listened while Leonard and Callaway praised THE DARTMOUTH for being the most meaningful activity of Dartmouth student life. We agreed.

And when it was all over, we knew we had successfully guided THE DARTMOUTH through one of its most difficult and historically significant years. We had left a legacy for generations of future editors and reporters and we were proud of it. For 12 months we had lived, breathed, walked, and talked THE DARTMOUTH, and, in spite of ourselves, we had loved every minute of it. Ralph Hill, the College's historian said it best when he told us we had "refounded THE DARTMOUTH." We felt that way too, but it was nice to hear it from someone else.

Jack-O-Lantern

"This is the most ridiculous tea party I have ever seen," Alice exclaimed. "You must all be mad to carry on like this."

"But my dear, of course, we're mad," Skean patiently explained, "That's the secret of the Jacko's success." He poured some cream into his typewriter, dropped in two lumps of sugar and began typing with his toes.

"Ah yes, madness," said Livingston, who daintily dunked the manuscript in his tea before munching on it, "It keeps us going. We'd all be crazy without it."

Maccles popped his head out of the gluepot, drowsily said "Layout" and sank back to sleep again.

"Layout, Huzzah!" cheered Skean and Livingston, and they immediately began pasting scraps of articles all over each other.

Alice was mortified but before she could say anything, Ron Weiss strode in. "Off with their heads," he commanded.

"But I haven't done anything," Alice protested.

"It doesn't make any difference," Weiss said, "Business is business. Off with their heads."

Just then Harvard and McKeown came running in, crying, "We're late, we're late," and flinging around all sorts of cartoons and artwork.

This was the signal for general pandemonium. Skean buzzed around in his gyrocopter, Livingston got shot down, Aalto, Lafsky, Harriman, Denison, and Marks played the radish game, Whitcomb, and Gerakaris got left holding the bag, and the dish ran away with the spoon.

"Oh, this is all a bad dream," cried Alice, ready to burst into tears. "I'm going to wake up right now and forget the whole thing." And she did.

Broadcast Disturbs Town

A WGBH Commentary program in the use of the word "disturb" has caused a stir in the College and Bowdoin communities.

Based on the College radio station Monday night by its author Arthur "Freddy" Freeman, Jr. the program was interrupted by a student who said that the word "disturb" was inappropriate. It is noted that College radio and Bowdoin radio stations are not to be used for the purpose of disturbing the community.

Following the broadcast, WGBH reportedly received several calls about the program from interested students. Yesterday morning, a story on the program was carried in the Bowdoin News. The story, by the Editor, mentioned that the word "disturb" was inappropriate.

The Bowdoin paper said Freeman charged in the broadcast that "there were disturbed students" who were "disturbed" by the program. Freeman said that he was not "disturbing" anyone, but that he was "disturbing" the program.

'Intruders' Relish Five-Day Mixer

By DAVID SPITZ

Whether you call it "Good Week" or "The Five Day Mixer," there has been an obvious change in the Bowdoin scene over the past few days.

Mount Bowdoin girls have been everywhere, attending, addressing, and participating in the various classes, working on the "Good Week" project, and "Good Week" is the name of the mixer.

The mixer is a five-day event, and it is the name of the mixer.

Many girls say they have found the Dartmouth students to be friendly and polite. They told us all the good classes to go to, and they told us all the good classes to go to.

The mixer is a five-day event, and it is the name of the mixer.

There were several complaints about the way the program was planned. One student said that the program was planned to be a five-day event, and it is the name of the mixer.

NEVER GIVE AN INDIAN AN EVEN BREAK

Eleazar Wheelock ..... W. C. Fields

As the scene opens, Eleazar is seen standing next to a large, slightly broken-down covered wagon. Upon the wagon, the following is painted in large, elaborate lettering: ELEAZAR WHELOCK — EDUCATOR, THEOLOGIAN, AND HUMANITARIAN EXTRAORDINAIRE — ACCLAIMED BY DISTINGUISHED PERSONNAGES OF ALL CONTINENTS. Eleazar is holding a large flagon of rum, which he refills from time to time from the copious supply in his wagon. He is surrounded by ragged-looking Indians, who are eyeing him suspiciously.

ELEAZAR: Behold, my noble savage friends, the wondrous bounties of education, an ingenious institution, as taught by myself, the Honorable Eleazar J. Wheelock, L.L.D., P.H.D., D.D.T. ex culpis magna. Reminds me of a time when I was similarly addressing a group in the mystic east under the shadows of the pyramids . . .

Will Man Venture to the Edge of the Earth?

Lack of knowledge about the Edge has not hampered speculation about it, though. Some claim that the Crystal Dome of the Sky joins the Rim at the Edge, and that we will have to drill our way through; preparations to do just that have already begun. Others say that the Sky does not in fact come down to the Rim, but is supported by pillars. There is no agreement, however, on the nature of these columns. Some say that they are of primitive barbaric origin, others that they are of Dorian or Corinthian background.

Also, there are certain radicals in the scientific community, led by Lord Snidely-Boreing, who maintain that the dome protects us by sealing the outer atmosphere from the Earth. They claim that the outer atmosphere is a thick, viscous liquid, and that if the Argonauts drill through the dome to the other side the outer atmosphere will ooze through the crack like molasses through a cracked jug, and not only suffocate the Argo Expedition, but fill up the entire dome and destroy all of mankind in a sort of gooey deluge. Most people doubt that such an occurrence could really happen, though, for as no less an authority than the Bishop of Ely remarked, "God promised to wipe us out with fire and brimstone, not another flood."

The remarkable Head Transplant

Wallace's old head was then thrown in the waste basket and Carmicheal's head sewed in place. Any gaps or weak places were then filled with putty.

"The major difficulty in the operation involved matching up the spinal cord, tracheae, arteries and veins and so on. We accomplished this by placing the head facing forward. Fortunately, both men had extremely large heads. Carmicheal's head fit Wallace perfectly."

The "initial psychological distortion" noted by Dr. Burnhart raised what one physician called "a perplexing question." The subconscious muttering of the patient reflected views expressed by the deceased. "Is it not possible," the physician asked, "that, rather than a head transplant, we have performed a body transplant? Rather than granting Mr. Wallace a new lease on life, we may have saved the deceased; we may have given Carmicheal's head a new body." The doctors could not arrive at a satisfactory answer to this possibility.

Indians 98, Pilgrims 6: The First Thanksgiving

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen, I'm Howard de Hangon. Welcome to 17th Century, a look at the events which shape and influence our lives in this, the 17th century. Tonight we are privileged to bring you the First Annual Pilgrim and Indians Picnic. We realize this may seem trivial to you, but not much is happening in the little colony of Plymouth."

"Let me explain to you the use of English in this broadcast. None of the Indians speak a great deal of English since 1) the Indians have not yet discovered England and 2) no institutions of higher learning have yet been set up in the Colonies, and even if they were, they would only admit a few token Indians, who would then never return to their former tribes anyway. This reporter feels that eventually schools will be set up for the exclusive education of Indians, and perhaps a few token settlers. Up to now, however, the Indians only know a few expressions in English, such as 'How,' 'White man speak with forked tongue,' and 'Chone.' The Pilgrims know only a few Indian words, such as 'Wampum,' 'Massachusetts' (the meaning of which is unknown, but several settlers think is profanity) and 'Chone.'

Letters from Parkhurst

A word about grades. Despite gloomy predictions about its future, the class of '68 has maintained a consistent high level of academic performance. Their grades aren't all in yet, but if past experience is any guide, about 25% of the '68's will make the top quarter of the class, another 25% will shake out into the second quarter, and the remaining 50% should be split up pretty evenly between the last two quarters.

Night of Shame

"Put on your bra!" he snarled to the poor girl, who hadn't been told about men of this sort. Jane buried her face in her hands and wept.

"No! No! and a thousand times more! My mother taught me what to do!" Jane crossed her arms in front of her quivering, inviting, enormous breasts. Harold lept on the bed and wrestled with the girl. He thrust her arms into the straps, pinned her down on her stomach, and fastened the clasps. The terrified girl screamed.

Then, maddened by passionate rage, he forced her sheer black lace panties up over her quivering, rippling thighs. Unable to stop, in spite of the girl's uncontrollable weeping, Harold forced her arms into her blouse and began fumbling with the buttons. When Jane realized the full significance of this latest outrage, she struggled, kicking and biting Harold in lewd and lascivious places. At last, with his clumsy fingers at the last button, Jane realized the worst had been done and surrendered in exhaustion.

I. THE REAL HISTORY OF THE WORLD

In the beginning, God created Heaven; in 1620, He created the United States. These were His two greatest accomplishments. People who try to tell you otherwise are communists and their names should be turned in to the officers of the OFFICIAL AMERICANS.

For quite a while the United States stayed on the right-thinking road and God let it make lots of money. But in 1933 God got mad at it and sent the devil to rule his chosen people.

MAC: Two points you haven't mentioned. One is that Saran Wrap will keep the Vietnamese bodies fresh for our official body counts. Second, it will provide a function for the South Vietnamese army, which will hold down the edges. Anyone who has ever tried to get Saran Wrap to stick to the edge of a bowl can imagine how hard it would be to get the stuff to stick to a whole country. But so much for details, gentlemen. What I want, gentlemen, are suggestions as to how your products could be used as weapons.

EPOXY: Well, Mac, a lot of people have been clamoring for us to seal up Haiphong Harbor. With my company's epoxy glue we could do that in no time. Just load a ton of the glue into one plane, and a ton of "fixer" into another one, and drop the whole mess together. All of the ships in the harbor would be glued in place permanently.

From the Shores of Tripoli

So we ask you, Mr. President, to end the war now, before our store of international good will is entirely gone. We hear monthly of the indignities heaped upon our embassies at home and abroad, the milling masses chanting "Hey, Hey, Mr. J., How Many Sheiks Did You Shoot Today." Just this last December the General Assembly of the Holy Roman Empire (man's last best hope for peace) condemned our aggressive actions. Russia has repeatedly warned against our flagrant impiety toward peace-loving monarchist states. The Noble Turk has even threatened to close his borders to American pilgrims. And these disasters will mount, Mr. President, unless you act now.

The Seige of Shleswig-Sweinfart

During the recent conversion of the Tower of London to Prince Charlie's bachelor pad, there was found behind a pile of assorted chopping blocks a chest containing such historically important items as Henry VIII's rosary beads, Anne Boleyn's dentures, Elizabeth I's chastity belt, and the rancid remains of Rudyard Kipling. The chest was then a catch-all, a veritable garbage can of English history, but the best was yet to come. For there was found in this chest a diminutive volume covering one of the most obscure yet unimportant events in world (European) history, The Siege of Shleswig-Sweinfart.

Historians have long been puzzled about this tragic event. Originally it was assumed it was just lost in the shuffle since so many wars were fought during this confusing period. Often princes would be so muddled by shifting alliances that on many occasions they wound up fighting the wrong enemy. In this era there were seventeen unnecessary wars, eleven superfluous massacres, and a pillage that no one seems to know much about, to say nothing of the duke who declared war on himself and died a tragic death on the battlefield just at the moment of victory.

Heart of Dartmouth

I stepped aside, lowered my gun, and he was free. Free! Free to roam wherever he wished, free to play his stereo full blast at three o'clock in the morning, free to boot and pass in the middle of the Green, free to flip birds at daughters of alumni.

Oh, I know, perhaps it was foolish of me to let him go, but he can't last forever. Sooner or later, he'll grow a little too careless, a little too slow to rally, and then some Smithy will bring him down and that will be the end of the Dartmouth Animal."

Seymour fell silent and gazed thoughtfully out the window for a moment. I thought for a moment I saw a tear fall on the weather stained sleeve of his bush jacket. When he began speaking again, the old weariness was back in his voice, "He's the last of them. You know, I think I'll miss the Animals after he's gone. They had a sort of barbaric splendor, a primitive majesty, that the world will never see again. I doubt anyone who has ever seen it will forget the magnificent sight of a full-grown Animal in all his pagan glory slobbering all over his date."

Outside in the night, the wild dogs were calling softly to each other, and the native drums were throbbing, "Biddy - biddy - boom, biddy-boom, biddy-boom."

"And what is there left for us now?" he asked and tossed down another drink, "Weenies!"

Mr. Nixon Speaks?

So, "as we beat on, boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly in the past," my wife Pat and I in these simple Republican clothes and with this stuffed memory of one of the symbols of American Dream, our old dog Checkers, we offer ourselves to a country beset by war, strife, and those dirty commies who gave cancer to John Foster Dulles. And now it is back to the travail and challenge of our humble Park Avenue apartment where the problems of America can and should be faced.

CREAM O'WIT DIES AT 51

The Cream O' Wit, official Jacko-lantern greeter, died last Wednesday, apparently by its own hand. A neighbor attracted by the smell of burning pumpkin pie investigated and found Cream O' Wit kneeling in front of a gas oven with its head inside. Pinned to the corpse was what appeared to be a suicide note, bearing only the cryptic message:

"Q. Why did the chicken cross the road?

A. That was no lady, those were my red suspenders."

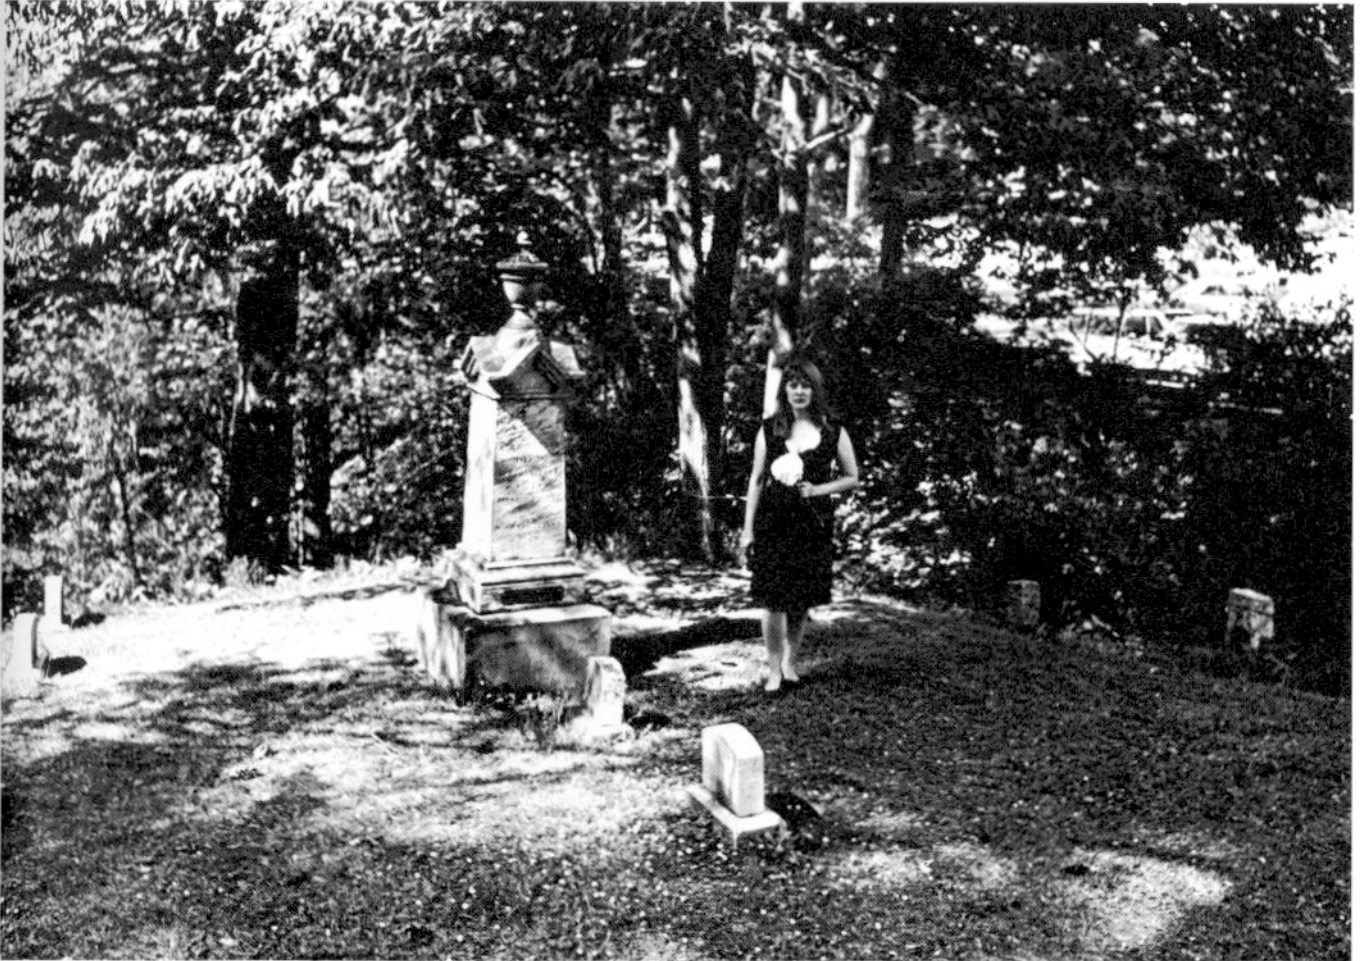

A close friend of the page stated that Cream O' Wit had been despondent in recent years due to a decline in popularity and the alleged hostility of critics: "Everyone told Cream he was going to hell, and I guess he finally took them seriously."

Funeral services for the deceased will be held in Rollins Chapel Sunday at 11 AM. Dean Thaddeus Seymour will deliver the eulogy and afterwards do a few magic tricks.

The Cream O' Wit is survived by the Table of Contents, Vox Clamantis and the Jacko dogs.

Entertainment

The Players

As the 1966-67 season drew to a close, the Players suffered their most serious setback in years. Beth Hamilton was leaving. After a tearful good-bye to The Hostage, the Hanover plain was left with its Beth-i. Recovering, the Players managed to put on Thomas and Sally (despite the bickering staff) and Cox and Box (by Mad Madison Morton). The alums remained glued to their seats over reunion as the Gummer sang his heart out in the patter song.

The new season opened with a new department and a new executive board. Narthl looked like a refugee from the Jewish Lep-rechaun Society, CIK spread sunshine and good cheer wherever he went, the representative from the corn belt overruled popular opinion and saved the IFPC, Hermie sent letters like crazy (would you believe two?) and Nutt remained the stalwart bearer of a fading sanity. Uncle Vanya opened despite the picket lines sent by Willie Loeb to protest the Commie Pinko. Dark of the Moon sent witches and Hanover High girls flying over the stage. Oliver! restored the Dartmouth Carnival Musical to its rightful status and provided good entertainment for the pulchritude that graced the plain. Eric Forsythe was a fagin to remember. The Ripper spread terror wherever he walked, and he walked everywhere, on, through, and under it. Musgrave danced to the delight of all, and gave Chuck Morey The Break. Chuck was last seen snarling at a freshman who didn't recognize him behind his dog. Comedy of Errors may take it yet, and with two other shows in production (In White America and The Sorcerer) the season should come to a roaring close. The department has won a lot of fans, and Rod Alexander has earned our thanks for giving Dartmouth a drama department worthy of the name, a task worthy of several, not just one, mortal man.

Glee Club

In keeping with tradition, the Glee Club officially began its 1967-68 performing season on the steps of Dartmouth Hall as part of the ceremonies marking Dartmouth Night. Later in the fall, after many hours of rehearsal under the direction of Professor Paul R. Zeller, the Glee Club gave its first formal concerts of the term in Hanover. With two inches of snow on the ground, the Glee Club, for the first time in its ninety-nine year history, was able to make the Hanover Winter Song an appropriate part of its fall Houseparties Concerts.

This year, the Club's fall schedule was extended by two concerts in December. After an appearance in conjunction with the St. Johnsbury Concert Series, the Club took part in what undoubtedly was the high point of its fall term activities. On December 17, the Glee Club participated in the first annual Holiday Glee Club Festival, part of the inaugural ceremonies of New York's recently completed Madison Square Garden.

The return to Hanover in early January brought the resumption of rehearsals in preparation for the Winter Carnival Concerts. In late February, with two sell-out Carnival performances and a three day concert tour to New York and New Jersey behind them, the winter term exams and the climax of the Club's schedule—the annual Spring tour.

This year's tour held special appeal since it took the Club away from the cold of Hanover to the warmer temperatures of the South and included four days in Florida. Any tour which schedules fourteen concerts in fourteen cities in as many days cannot help but become a blur of auditoriums, parties, gracious alumni hosts, parties, thousands of miles of traveling, and PARTIES. But certain details stand out. Few will soon forget the reception at Philadelphia; Saturday night on Lookout Mountain, Tennessee; the beach party in Sarasota where the Club collectively fried; the night in Fort Lauderdale when, despite accommodations in a beach side hotel, many never left the beach; the opportunity to entertain troops returning from Vietnam, in Jacksonville; the concert in Washington with the Dartmouth Congressional delegation in attendance. These and many other memories will remain with the members of the Glee Club long after the long hours of rehearsals and bus rides have faded.

This year, like all others with the Glee Club was many things. It involved many hours of hard, but satisfying work. Its tours made the meaning of such terms as "wipe out" and "rally" abundantly clear, especially to the sophomores. The year included many things: Paul Zeller's commentaries on student political affairs, Rupp's black hat, and O'Donnell's problems with the Winter Carnival Queen's corsage.

But above all, this year and its successes were largely the result of and responsibility of the Glee Club's Director Paul R. Zeller. Only through his talent, his motivating influence, and his concern for the Glee Club—both collectively and for its members as individuals, could it have accomplished what it has.

The members of the Dartmouth Glee Club are grateful to Professor Zeller for his time, his help, and his friendship.

Injunaires

Jim Miser, Eric Jones, Mike Hermann, Paul Stageburg, Dave Peck, John Sadd, Joe Serene, Jack Roberts, Larry Stephans, Don MacMannis, Rob Horner, Bill Rollings.

Keeping to the annual tradition, the new Injunaires were finally chosen as the sun rose over the heating plant. With the new voices, a new sound was formed under "strict Stags." There remained such conventions as Joe always being ten minutes late, or Herm "on the rocks." However, new institutions were added: . . . like man, I don't relate . . . sweet, sweet . . . the Sewickley kid . . . "fingers" Mise, the cradle robber . . . "The Bah Hahbab Trippah", lost somewhere in New Hampshire . . . that song was quite simple until Stags got his hands on it . . . the fragile trophy case . . . Wendy's knees . . . the sun-bronzed pipe . . . Mr. Smiles

"All right, I just accepted jobs at Smith on Friday, at Sweetbriar on Saturday, and U.C.L.A. on Sunday afternoon. But don't worry we'll be back by midnight." Professional roadtrippers in "Baby Olds" and the "Minnesota Classic."

But it wasn't so long ago, remember? Our first job, hobnobbing with the Elks at Bonnie Oaks. Sweaty palms.

Beer hall at the mythological Union Village Dam; sleeping dorm clerks, and hat passers at reunions. Then there was that "show" at the '29 tent. Remember Mrs. B?

Fall brought double session, "meg-a-date", the "Pocket Rocket", (who's number 36?) and house jobs. Singing never necessarily ended at practice. There was the Christmas carolling in the reserve corridor and the "doo-bee-doing" to the "Hop Rats" in the snack bar. Even though the songs might be the same, the jobs never were . . . unexpected orchestra pits . . . the mysteries of the Felt Forum as discovered by Rob and Dave . . . the superb lunch served at Williamstown . . . traps in New York . . . manna from heaven . . . thank you Mr. Dale.

There was a lot in store for the winter and spring. Log jam at Boston, Bowdoin, Spring Sing, keeping a certain piece of silver in Hanover and always much more practice. So what does it all add up to? . . . a lot more than the sum of the parts.

Chip up . . . let's go.

Barbary Coast

Aided by young blood from the class of '71 (and older blood from the philosophy department), the Barbary Coast started early this year with a concert at Mt. Holyoke. Despite rumblings from the tambourine section and the piercing scream from Jim's plastic trumpet, we were on our way. Ross even came all the way from Spain.

We coasted (snicker) back home to the Hop and our next concert, followed by a freezing day in the open playing for Governor Romney. Thanks to Dick "the dealer" Jones, we're looking forward to a full schedule and a highly successful year.

Dartmouth Five

The Dartmouth Five (Give-or-Take a few) swung this year with the same sordid group which astonished last spring's reunion crowds with their abilities with Dixie and beer! Tonks was the fearless leader, waving his mutant trumpet, Bruce wrote the letters and hid the money in his bass, Randy splintered reeds, John spent the year trying to unstick his slide, Scott broke more strings than any banjo in history, and Kirby brought the Beard and the Beat to Dixie. We kept the drunks singing from Fraternity Row to the Hop, and played for nearly everyone from Blackman and Ruth to Seymour and Romney. The Old Traditions aren't dead, they're hiding in the Dartmouth Five. Let's hear that "Saints" one more time . . .

Band

From the first flicker of the bonfire for the Holy Cross game to the last strain of "Men of Dartmouth" echoing through Palmer stadium, the Band led the fans of Dartmouth football in cheering the Indians to another victorious season. We marched through the usual gamut of Hanoverian weather — rain, fog, and cold, and a few precious days of sunshine. This year we had something new, though—the first annual Houseparties blizzard. Funny, but white chalk lines don't show very well on a snow-covered field. It was a successful season, though, in spite of what Chet Huntley or a few Birchers might say. (What other football marching band plays Tschai-kovsky on the field?)

Meanwhile, the Concert Band was preparing for a busy schedule of concerts in Hanover and on tour in the New York and Philadelphia suburbs. The Concert Band shaped up well in spite of two marriages and couple of unruly beards. The men of the Band found that the girls of Green Mountain were as appreciative as ever of our annual spring road trip, which, to quote an old Band shark, "brings a little Culture" to rural Vermont. And to crown a rewarding concert season, the Brasses beat the Woodwinds 47-0 in the spring football game at Don's, which was played according to the usual rules.

Dartmouth Community Symphony Orchestra

The Dartmouth Community Symphony Orchestra has a long history of continuous development at Dartmouth College. Begun in 1807 as the Handel Society, the name was changed in 1960 to reflect more accurately the makeup of its present personnel and the growing musical it is asked to play in Hanover and the surrounding region. Approximately fifty percent of this eighty piece orchestra is made up of Dartmouth undergraduates. Doctors, lawyers, merchants, housewives, nurses, and faculty members from Hanover and surrounding towns make up the other half. This group is supplemented for concerts by a few professionals.

During the sabbatical absence of permanent conductor Mario di Bonaventura, assistant conductor John Farrer led orchestra concerts in November, January, and May. Soloist for the January concert was the gifted young Columbian pianist Blanca Uribe.

Handel Society

The principal offering of the year—The Christmas Oratorio of J. S. Bach—was presented in Spaulding Auditorium by the Hanover gown-and-town “family” of musicians under conductor James Sykes on December 3. The work was given virtually without cuts by the Handel Chorus, by an orchestral ensemble and by vocal soloists chosen from the student body and community. The event marked the 160th year since the founding of the Chorus at Dartmouth in 1807.

Prominent among students participants were: tenor Paul Stageberg '68, who sang the words of the Evangelist; baritone James Williams 'G; violinist Sin-Tung Chiu '68, who was concertmaster; and keyboard player Philip Youngholm '69, who was at the Music Department's new portative organ.

Among professors who appeared as soloists were J. Laurie Snell and cellist Reese Prosser. Other vocal soloists from the community included Mesdames Berlin, Kapler, McGaw, and Peet and baritone Kendrick Munsey. Beverly Gaylord performed the harpsichord continuo part. About one-half of the performers were students in this production, which was intended, to use Bach's own phrase, Denen Kennern und Liebhabern (For Connoisseurs and Music Lovers).

Ushers

The Hopkins Center Ushers Club is a group of some 100 college students, student nurses, and other members of the community who usher for all Hopkins Center events, in return for which they are admitted to these events free of charge, and may occupy any empty seat in the house. Club members may usher for concerts, or plays, or both; they may usher as often or as infrequently as they wish. Dates may also usher, and thus attend a performance free of charge. Generally ushers meet in the Hop forty-five minutes before the beginning of a performance to show members of the audience to their seats. For several years, the Ushers Club has provided the Hopkins Center with an enthusiastic group of students to disregard costs and attend as many of these events as they would like.

WDCR

Dave Walden, Business Mgr.; Ted Nixon, Program Director; Jack Hopke, General Mgr.; Larry Barnet, Ass't. General Mgr.

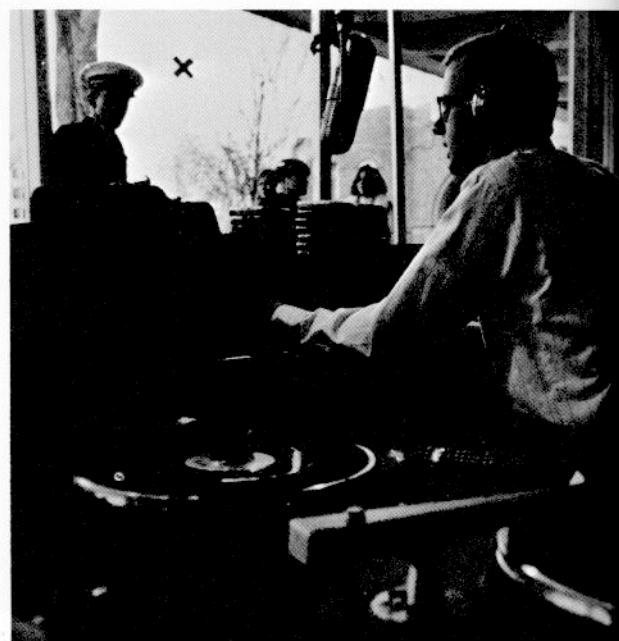

"1968, WDCR, you've never heard it so good," Ferguson said, and the audience agreed. WDCR was continuing Dartmouth Radio's new, more professional sound. The audience was bigger than ever before. Two independent surveys, one student oriented and the other community oriented, proved that WDCR was actually unrivalled on the home turf. The sound was the reason. With men taking "across the board" shifts, the listeners were familiar with the staff. More than before, the audience knew what they'd be hearing when they tuned in. Even "Daybreak" was being stabilized with a contemporary sound that wasn't quite upbeat. Well, almost stabilized.

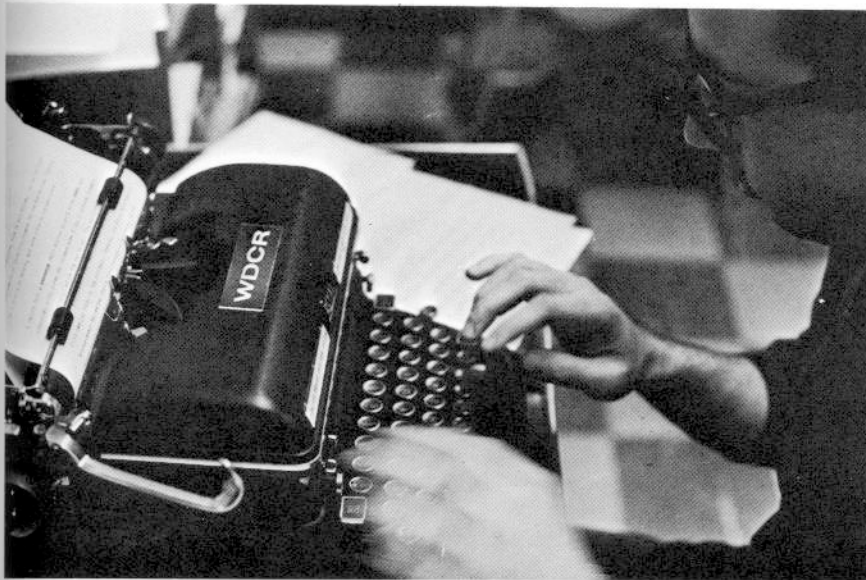

In the winter we added singing promotions—jingles. We knew they were a success when a local cub scout pack sang along with them. Subconsciously. It took the town a while to agree that WDCR hadn't sacrificed its integrity to the jingle. In fact we hadn't sacrificed a thing, except money.

The real reasons our audience was bigger than in the past were quite basic. The staff calibre had improved. Our new maximizing equipment got our signal closer to its potential than ever before. The 18½ hour day in the summer helped, too.

WDCR finally had a permanent agreement with the College to insure service to the college and community during the summer session.

With greater activity at WDCR, more people and more facilities were needed. So Ochs and Allen just spent their summer in Hanover and rebuilt and rewired the studios. They made the old ones more efficient and they added a new one, too. Studio 5, the addition, allowed newsmen with a minimum of technical know-how complete independent facilities to record from our audio news networks as well as from phones. Also, announcers could record spots on their own. Thank goodness the engineers' union hadn't heard.

In recognition of the importance of news in WDCR's daily operation, our News Director became a member of the Directorate. We now had what corresponds to Editor-in-Chief at any college daily. In fast breaking tri-town news, WDCR was rarely scooped.

But unlike our friends below, we claim news to be only one of our important duties. WDCR has also been the heart of student and town communications, entertainment and public service. When a community or college activity had to be publicized, WDCR was regarded as the best medium. When it was time to relax, again people turned to us. When the community wanted to rally around a central objective, WDCR had the suggestion that proved to be a great solution: "WDCR'S Let's Help—an award winning effort to relieve suffering on the other side of the world. WNHV, the White River station, gave WDCR its annual award for efforts in community service. As the owner of that station said, WDCR is a great competitor.

The year was WDCR's tenth. In addition to the usual revelry, this year the banquet included a seminar featuring a few of Dartmouth's outstanding grads in communications. Gambaccini did the work, got five of the Green's best back in town, and the station certainly benefitted from the new outlook the men offered.

Probably the highlight of the year was the news that Strathmeyer had unearthed a first class license on a casual jaunt down to Boston. Then when Lippman's parents promised he'd be around with another one, the tech department cringed. Not enough room on the transmitter wall.

When MTM went to an extra half hour, just to be large enough to accommodate Gordon, Barnet and Zuckerman sighed. Finally enough room for the ads. A crew of thousands had increased the revenue to a new high—eight thousand dollars above the year previous.

What's new at WDCR? Just busy on the job. More people more active than ever. More music. More listeners. Volume up.

The only all-student commercial station, a "competitive" station, a full time 1000 watt standard station, WDCR isn't satisfied. But then that's not new. WDCR is already plotting for next year.

			WDCR's program log tells the story. In the 26th year of Dartmouth College Radio the station was a busy place. The staff had more active members than any year previous, and the directorate kept them busy, one way or another. Jack Hopke was G.M.; in charge of the frequency assigned to the College, operated from studios at Robinson Hall. Larry Barnet was ass't. # Activities

Council on Student Organizations

The Council on Student Organizations is primarily responsible for the supervision of non-athletic organizations not specifically assigned by the President to other agencies such as the D.O.C. The aim of C.O.S.O. is to create an atmosphere where extra-curricular activities may flourish. Through financial assistance and the provision of office space, meeting rooms, and general office services, the Council encourages the development of a variety of clubs whose programs appeal to the many extra-curricular interests of the undergraduates.

The Council is a representative body composed of members from the faculty, the administration, and the student body. In addition to the important function of considering annual budget requests of affiliated student organizations, C.O.S.O., acting in conjunction with the Undergraduate Council, has the responsibility of determining whether newly-organized clubs shall receive recognition as Dartmouth College organizations.

The Council supervises approximately twenty-one active organizations. The names of some of these clubs are suggestive of the breadth of the opportunities they offer the student: Germania, International Relations Club, Chess Club, Camera Club, Dartmouth Christian Union, Jewish Life Council, Forensic Union, Flying Club.

Aquinas House

The Aquinas House, the Catholic Student Center at Dartmouth experienced another successful year in 1967-68. The Newman officers—Pres. Noel Augustyn, V.P. Bill Ellis, Secs. Jim Staros and John Crane, Treas. Mike Brune, and the sophomore delegates were again fortunate enough to have the guidance of Father Bill Nolan who directs the center throughout the year.

The activities of the Aquinas House are centered on its objectives of assisting the student in his spiritual, intellectual and social development. Mass and the Sacraments are offered daily throughout the year. Lectures, retreats, spaghetti suppers, movies, mixers, and nightly snacks in the Center's kitchen are available.

In addition to the customary features, though, the year was one of innovation. Fr. Robert O'Brian, S.J., the assistant chaplain for the year initiated discussions relating to current problems on subjects of a social, dogmatic, moral, national, and international nature. A liturgical committee was formed to introduce and explain the development of the Mass and the new liturgy and to make it more meaningful to the life of the student. Under Fr. O'Brian's leadership the AQ House offered its first course in the Dartmouth Experimental College—"Religious Thought and Scientific Method"—which dealt with problems facing contemporary man in his effort to understand and reconcile human and religious values in the context of a developing technological culture. Overall, it was a year which emphasized the role of the Aquinas House not only in assisting the Catholic student, but also in increasingly attempting to make the Christian message more meaningful for the campus as a whole.

Episcopal Student Association

The members of the Episcopal Student Association, with the help and guidance of our new chaplain The Reverend Robert MacArthur, have this year attempted to dedicate themselves, through discussion, service, and worship to God and the community.

In worship we have experimented with folk music and a new liturgy as more contemporary media through which we can express ourselves. We gather weekly to communicate more informally in manners ranging from serious discussions of national and campus issues to folk singing and happening.

Our major project for this year has been our extension into the community through the Upper Valley Council for Retarded Children. Working with them, we have set up at Edgerton House the only sheltered workshop for the mentally handicapped in the state of New Hampshire. The goal of this workshop is to provide training and employment for mentally handicapped young people in the area so that they may achieve some degree of self-sufficiency. It is only a beginning, but one which will grow in the coming years, as we grow with it.

*First row: Traylor Mercer, Dave Williams, John Talmadge, Dave Sawyer, Bob MacArthur.
Second row: S. Bruemmer, S. Moss, A. Wall, B. Murray, J. Douglas, D. Stonebraker, G. Mather.*

"I make no closing plea for any formal religion, but I do plead now as always for the religious spirit . . . Seek, I pray you, moral distinction. Be not content with the commonplace in character any more than with the commonplace in ambition or intellectual attainment. Do not expect that you will make any lasting or very strong impression on the world through intellectual power without the use of an equal amount of conscience and heart."

William Jewett Tucker
Ninth President
Dartmouth College

Tucker Council

"The chief changes since I last spoke with you have been internal. The decisive factor was the opportunity of working in Project ABC last summer. It was the first time that I have ever really invested myself in someone else, and the experience was richly rewarding. In particular, I found that the settlement that I thought that I had made with life during my last years at Dartmouth seemed thin, brittle, and unreal. Views that I had thought arose from a clear observation of practical affairs seemed cynical and lacking in a core of human concern for myself or others."

Richard Dellamore '66
ABC Resident-Tutor

Jewish Life Council

The Jewish Life Council exists to serve the student of the College and the residents of the Upper Valley. The absence of a temple or full-time rabbi places the responsibility of inspiration and fulfillment on the members of the steering board. Our thanks go not only to our officers: President Richard Dolsky, Secretary Steven Horwitz, and Treasurer Robert Rudney, but to the whole community for their cooperation and participation.

The effort to fill the void of a religious leader in the Upper Valley Community has been the major project of this year's Jewish Life Council. It is the hope of the entire community that this effort will bring a full-time rabbi to Hanover in the near future. This leadership will enhance the program which includes: Sabbath services, Holy Day worship, faculty luncheons, mixers, bagels and lox breakfasts, faculty and guest lectures, a Hebrew School for local children, a Passover Seder, and a course in the Experimental College. The only limit to the programs offered by the Jewish Life Council is the imagination of its members, but this is also the source of its enthusiasm.

Christian Science Organization

As an organization of the Dartmouth campus we attempt to serve two functions. One is to represent Christian Science on the campus. We hope by embodying an organization—intentionally more impersonal than the individual student—to create a situation where Christian Science is available to members of the academic community, be they sincerely interested, merely curious, or even cynical. In this effort we sponsor annually a Christian Science lecture on campus and hold weekly meetings in Rollins Chapel open to all.

These meetings fulfill our second purpose. They consist of reading and discussion relevant to the demands of the process of the liberal education and everything that it implies. This is the great benefit that accrued to our members: a heightened awareness of our responsibilities to God, to ourselves, and to our fellow man.

Dartmouth Religious Liberals

A few years ago eight individuals looking for fewer religious sermons and more interpersonal discussions decided to form an entirely student-run group. The result was the Dartmouth Religious Liberals, a heterogeneous group with ideas and questions that need open debate. Each week we hold meetings in topside Thayer with faculty and visiting professors who stimulate and focus our discussion. We discuss current problems that involve a decision of the conscience. What is the moral answer? Why isn't it or why can't it be followed? We feel that this type of dilemma should be brought out into the open. Since we meet at Thayer during the dinner hour, the meetings are as convenient as possible. And why not spend one supper-hour per week discussing some problem of importance rather than talking about the usual nonsense?

We don't neglect the social side of our affairs. Our agenda this year included a conference in the spring with various schools and a special meeting with Mt. Holyoke. We have also made use of the Hanover Unitarian Fellowship facilities. Our association with this group is based upon the fact that it, too, searches for answers to delicate problems of religion and the moral conscience.

Dartmouth Christian Union

The Dartmouth Christian Union is a large non-denominational group of students seeking maturity through involvement in major social problems. Our approach is flexible; our membership open to any who want to involve themselves in the work.

This year we've expanded our projects to include counseling at Windsor Prison and a Big Brother Project in Lebanon. Our cabinet of officers took a trip to Kentucky over spring vacation in an attempt to learn something about the problem of Appalachia and set up ongoing programs in the area. Our regular programs, such as the Valley Tutorial and Hospital Visitation Commissions, expanded their operations considerably.

We are fortunate in having gained a new adviser, the Reverend Paul W. Rahmeier. Paul's fresh perspective and guidance have been crucial contributions to the success of the year. Our new secretary, Jane Crichton, has been both a good friend and an excellent secretary.

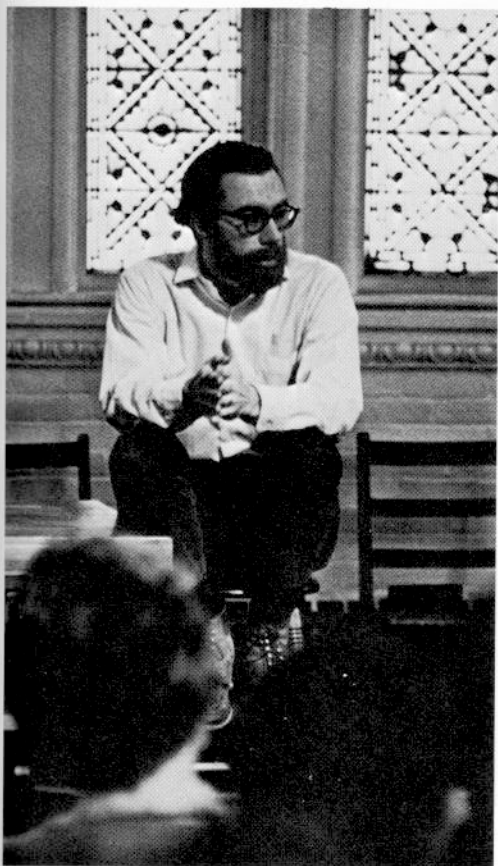

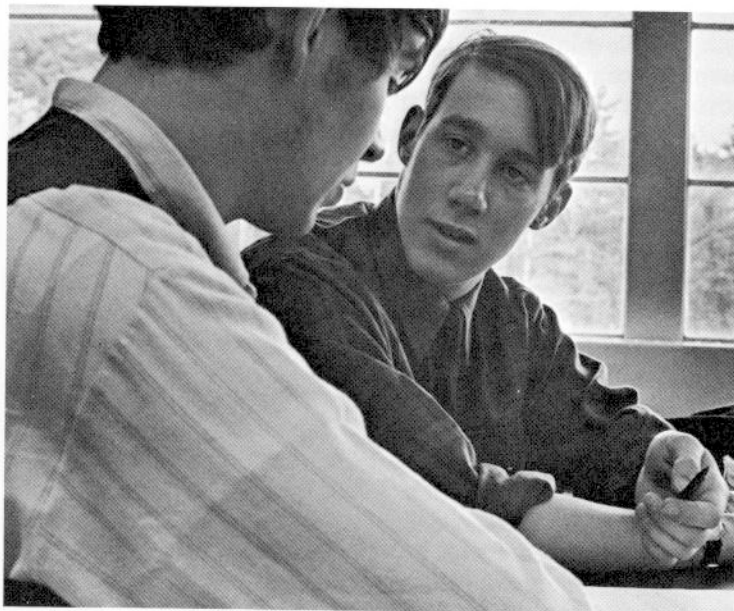

On campus, we have attempted to enrich the academic experience of the student body and to address ourselves to some of the issues confronting the College. We had the opportunity of sponsoring the first Tucker Resident Fellow, Carl Oglesby. Mr. Oglesby, former president of SDS and author of several articles on the New Left, discussed informally with fraternities, dormitories, and clubs his ideas and beliefs and addressed the student body as a whole on two occasions. We hope that he stimulated as much thought among all students as he did among ourselves.

We found ourselves enmeshed in such campus issues as Dow Chemical recruiters and the College's relations with the Selective Service System. Although there is a wide diversity of opinion among us, we still feel a need to clarify our views on these problems and to work toward constructive solutions for them.

On campus, in surrounding villages and towns, in national and international movements, and among ourselves, we have continually tried to relate meaningfully to the paradoxes and individuals surrounding us.

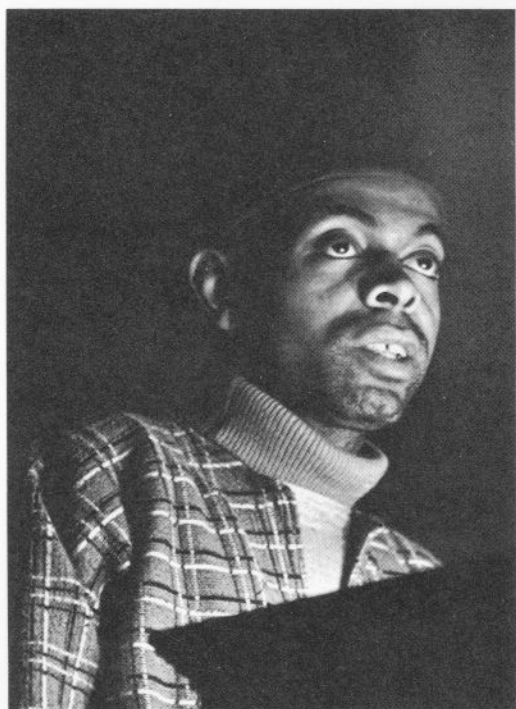

The Dartmouth Afro-American Society, during its second year on the College campus, has expanded and diversified its activities in an effort to more meaningfully involve the Black student in a relevant liberal arts experience. Each program and activity developed by the A.A.S. is motivated by a persistent effort to allow individual Black students to find ways to make compatible their sensitivity to the Black struggle in America with their own aspirations and goals. Concurrently, while nourishing a sense of dignity, pride, and integrity as a Black man, each member develops an awareness of the current political and social issues that involve Black people.

During the present academic year, the Afro-American Society has published its own all Black journal, Blackout; sponsored a highly successful; week long Black Arts Festival; made significant contributions in encouraging more Black students to enter Dartmouth (there are now 75); developed a program to allow Black students to take off a term and work with grass-roots organizations in the South; initiated a summer program for students entering Dartmouth with a deficient high school training; and numerous other activities.

Within a community of diverse interests, the Afro-American Society will continue to serve the interests of the Black student and at the same time challenge and awaken the Dartmouth campus with the crucial issues of our day.

El Circulo Espanol

Spanish flavor pervades 42 Robinson Hall every Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. when members of Circulo Español get together for the weekly reunion. Against a background of classical and contemporary Spanish music, Spanish speaking students discuss a wide range of topics, from Pablo Casals, to the nostalgia we all feel for Salamanca, Spain, the sight of the Dartmouth Foreign Study Program in Spain. Discussion also touches on such mundane topics as the complete fiasco with Colby Jr. College's "Spanish Club." In addition to weekly get-togethers, frequent Spanish movies of renown fame, informal "tertulias" with Spanish clubs from Colby Jr. and Smith, and banquets featuring the wonderful and heartwarming refreshment, "sangria," are all integral parts of the program.

Circulo Español offers the student interested in Spanish culture, language, and way of life, an opportunity to capture some of this savor. It is a relaxed, informal and yet lively organization—a true rarity in the extracurricular program at Dartmouth.

Germania

Seated: Dave Norden, Pres.; Standing: Fred Meyers, Treas.; Paul Kruger, V. P.; Neil Hirst, Sec.

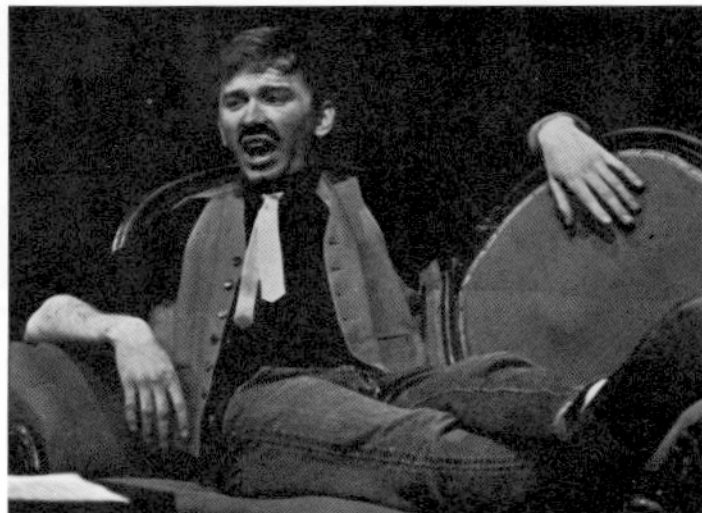

Once more Germania settled instelf into the Biedermeier buld of Robinson Hall. Once again viewing the world from the page tops of Der Spiegel and Pardon punctuated the fall of a Kneipe and a movie.

As winter approached, Vice-President Paul Kruger returned from, of all places, the Massif Central. Professor Robin Robinson enlightened us about the Dichterliebe song cycle of Schumann, using in the process our new Garrard change acquired over the summer. Cleaving to this theme Professor Chick presented Professor Jack Stein of Harvard who admirably invoked the spirit of das Lied. Thus the Verbindung invited people from the Dartmouth community interested in things German to listen to and meet faculty experts on German topics.

From the student ranks Dale Marshall called out the Freiburg contingent to help inform fellow students of the intricacies of a Bildungsreise after its return. As the year rushes toward June, Professor Kleinhardt tirelessly assisted us in presenting some example of German drama. In the meantime members saw the Wiener Burgtheater professionals stage Johann Nestroy's Einen Jux will er sich machen. Germania members looked forward to Paul Hoffman, a member of the Burgtheater, for his readings from Beethoven's letters. Finally a new member of the German department, Professor Salamon, assisted in making Germania patron of the celluloid arts.

And so, even if Dave joins the Drang nach Osten, Niel despairs of finding the piano music, Jeff roves into the wilderness, and Peter dallies in Spain, Meier might finally pay the bills and the golden mist of die alte Burschen-herzlichkeit will still hover over Hanover.

Win Rockwell, Lawrence Hogan, Ed Tuck, Doran Doeh (President), Robert Beach.

The 1967-68 program of Le Cercle Francais was indeed varied. A fine series of French films, an exquisite wine tasting ceremony, varied professorial talks on such subjects as modern French-speaking West Africa, the presentation of an Ionesco play and of course our traditional mixers with the French houses and clubs of those chic schools Mt. Holyoke, Smith, and Colby; all this and more made the past year a most active and enjoyable one for the Parisian-hearted muskateers of 52 Robinson Hall. Throughout the year, Le Cercle Francais worked with the rapidly enlarging Foreign Study Program at Dartmouth, helping keep alive the international interest stimulated by the students returning from France. The mammoth 250 student welcome-back reception at the D.O.C. House was perhaps the most ambitious and successful of all undertakings. The year ended with Le Cercle Francais's annual banquet—a feast featuring the superlative in French wines and cuisine

A.I.E.S.E.C. is the Association for the International Exchange of Students in Economics and Commerce. Operating in 42 countries, the international organization has supplied over 4,500 students with executive internships since it was founded in 1948. The United States chapter of A.I.E.S.E.C. was organized in 1956, and now has 82 participating colleges and universities. Dartmouth is a full status member and is sending about 15 students abroad in the summer of 1968.

The A.I.E.S.E.C. executive internship is a summer job in a foreign company. A student spends two months or more learning about and participating in all phases of a company's operation. By the end of the summer, it is hoped that he has enhanced his understanding of business in general and the way it is conducted in the country he visited. A.I.E.S.E.C. believes that one of the best ways to get to know a country is not as a tourist, but as a member of the community, living and working with the people.

Cosmopolitan Club

As in the past the Cosmopolitan Club continues dedicated to building better international understanding at Dartmouth. Through the orientation program, incoming foreign students are assisted by willing upperclassmen in the fall. The presence on campus of students from forty nations provides diversity for wide ranging discussions and local speaker's services.

This marked the second year of participation in the National Model United Nations, to which the Club sent tandem delegations representing Japan and the Philippines. Programs on political and cultural topics, Experimental College courses and social meetings with international relations clubs at other colleges served students who with every passing year seem more concerned about problems and policy in an increasingly multivalent international society.

First row: Bob Block, D.C.U.; Jose Mina, El Circolo Italiano; Barry Skolnick, Cosmopolitan Club; Tai-Sam Choo, Chairman; Peter Eddy, Dartmouth Project Mexico. Second row: Lawrence Ebner, Russian Club; David Nordin, Germania; William Adler, El Circulo Espanol; Jed Shapiro, Cutter Hall.

A co-curricular association of club officers, S.C.I.C.S. was formed to increase communication among the many student organizations programming in international studies. The Council has set the goal of working cooperatively to promote an increasingly international character in the formal and informal facets of the educational experience at Dartmouth.

S.C.I.C.S. was established last year as an executive body in association with the College's Comparative Studies Center and has steadily built upon the potential of the joint effort among students, faculty, and administration. In the interval S.C.I.C.S. has helped produce two intercollegiate conferences held at Dartmouth and launched a long term study of resources at the College in international affairs and comparative area studies.

Flying Club

The Flying Club has changed greatly in recent years; it would be almost unrecognizable to a member of the Club three years ago. At the end of the academic year 1964-65, the Club's only means of "getting off the ground," the weary Piper Super Cruiser cheerily nicknamed the "Green Coffin," was on its last gear. The Club, plagued by apathy and inaction of its administration, with outstanding debts and no capital, nearly flew its last x-c.

But in the fall of 1965, the Club got back into the air through the sale of the old airplane, the collection of back debts, and an offer of partnership in a used Cessna 150 generously extended by Post Mills Airways, Inc., the operators of the field at which the Club has been based. The arrangement worked to the mutual benefit of both the airport and the Club; and with the money accumulated during that year the outstanding debts were paid and the Cessna was traded in the fall of 1966 for a newer 150.

Again the Club membership grew and along with it, the treasury. This last fall, as a result, with the help of the newly formed Dartmouth Aviation, Inc., a local Piper dealership, the Club acquired a 1967 Piper Cherokee 140 N747R, a sleek, Dartmouth green and white, low-wing beauty.

With the higher cost of this new airplane the Club has taken on another small burden of debt; however, it looks ahead to an imminent move to Lebanon Regional Airport, where the greater convenience and expanded flight training facilities promise rapid, sure growth, and better service to the modern Dartmouth man with his eye on the sky.

Dartmouth Conservative Society

William Pelham, Treasurer; H. Frank Gump, President; John Patrick, Publicity Director; William S. Lind, Vice-President. Absent: Bruce Borgeson, Scott Palter, Douglas Mattox.

Now firmly entrenched in the Dartmouth community, the Conservative Society debated and argued its way through another successful year. Although desiring to steer a course independent of the insidious forums and panels that so often grace the Top of the Hop, we have, nevertheless, been forced to defend reality at the few we participated in.

Activities Night auspiciously commenced the fall term and the increased membership enabled the Society to create new administrative positions and committees such as the debating team of Steve Rosenthal '71 and Bob Cunningham '71, and the Financial Directorate of Keith Gleeson '70. Two lecturers were sponsored during the term: David Rowe of Yale in the Vietnam Focus and Peter T. Bauer of the London School of Economics and Political Science speaking on a new approach to foreign aid.

However, as in the past, our prime interest has been the encouragement of objective debate on general conservative theory rather than specific issues. Our maturing publication, The Idea, has been of inestimable value for this purpose, under the capable editorship of William S. Lind '69 and John Patrick '69. (The magazine has become almost as popular off campus with alumni and other conservatives as with the students.)

Requests for the future: fewer debates over black power, a Daily Dartmouth that approaches objectivity, a less maternal Palaeopitus, an S.D.S. that will shave when it grows up, and a return to the good old Dartmouth "apolitique."

As for the past, many thanks to Advisor Colin Campbell and to Jeffrey Hart of the English Department for their guidance and assistance.

Young Democrats

The Dartmouth College Young Democrats have been active in national and local politics in varying degrees since the 1964 election. Some of the various programs include voter registration drives; and a new England Conference of College Young Democrats which featured Kenneth O'Donnel, special advisor to President Kennedy, as a speaker. Through the Young Dems, Dartmouth students have participated in various campaigns ranging from those of President Johnson, Senator McIntyre, and Senator McCarthy. In the spring of 1967, we detached ourselves from the Viet Nam War policy of President Johnson, while at the same time urging more effort to be concentrated on the Great Society programs. In the winter of 1968 the Young Dems came out in public support of Senator McCarthy in his campaign for the Democratic nomination. We feel that the varied and complex problems of the United States can best be solved by working with new concepts and new vigor within the political process.

Richard Lannen, Pres.; Jacob Bergman, V.P.; Michael Simon, Treas.

The Dartmouth Young Republicans attempt to provide an outlet for student Republican opinion, to enable students to participate effectively in political campaigns, and to expose the entire campus to important political figures. This year's activities have included presentation of speakers, committee work on issues, campus polls, a membership campaign, and participation in the activities of the New Hampshire Federation of Young Republican Clubs. Dartmouth students have also attained positions of significance in both the Nixon and the Romney primary campaigns. During the year, the Club has both expanded its roll as a campus organization and increased its involvement with other Republican groups, in preparation for the 1968 elections.

The Student Chapter of the Dartmouth Society of Engineers works with its parent society to hold a series of programs and lectures on current engineering opportunities and supplying information on the trends of business management as related to engineering and construction. In addition the Society sponsors social functions every term at which faculty and students can meet together on a strictly informal basis.

Forensic Union

Dartmouth debaters had a distinctive record attempt to duplicate in the 1967-68 season, which came on the heels of the national championship victory by Tom Brewer and John Isaacson the previous spring. This was the third national championship for Dartmouth, making Herb James the only coach in the nation to have three title-winning teams.

The national topic for the year was "Resolved that the federal government should guarantee a minimum annual cash income to all citizens." Although unable to capture any first place awards during the early part of the season, varsity teams did bring home trophies from tournaments at Northern Illinois, Detroit, Georgetown, Emory, Stanford and Dartmouth. Freshmen won laurels at Boston University, Loyola, and Miami, besides winning—naturally—the Dartmouth Fall Novice.

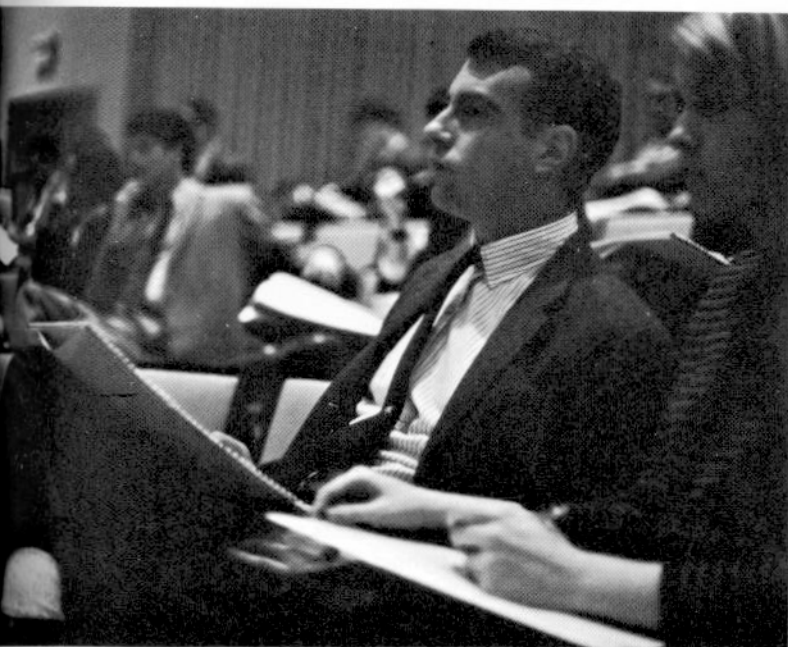

The Thirteenth Annual Dartmouth Varsity Invitational Tournament was bigger and better than ever. One hundred and ten teams were on campus in February to compete in what turned out to be a surprisingly smooth operation.

The officers and freshman coaches this year were: Paul Pillar '69, President; Joseph Campbell '69, Vice-President; Donald Pogue '69, Secretary-Treasurer; and Brooke Jackson '69, Green Key.

Chess Club

The Chess Club is one of the smallest, and most active organizations on campus. Meeting twice a week, this group devotes a great deal of its time to prepare for its rugged match and tournament schedule in the spring. At this time it will play a series of matches with such powerhouses as McGill and Sir George Williams (the two strongest teams in Canada), Norwich University (the most active team in New England), Harvard and M.I.T. (the Ivy League and New England Champions, respectively). In addition to these matches, it intends to attend the team tournaments for the Ivy League Championship, where it will be a dark horse candidate for top honors, and the New England Collegiate Championship, which it would like to hold in Hanover.

Besides its competition as a team, the Chess Club will feature both a Club and a Collegiate Championship, and plans to host a major New England tournament.

Much opportunity is also available for individual play among the members, either on a serious basis or simply for enjoyment. The club features several "five-minute" tournaments, along with individual match play. Anyone who plays chess, for either fun or blood, will find something for enjoyment in the Chess Club.

The imposing twin towers on the roof of Wilder Hall mark the location of the Dartmouth Amateur Radio Association. There, two-way radio communication with fellow radio amateurs around the world is conducted in voice, Morse Code telegraphy, and radioteletype. A wide variety of activities include the maintenance and construction of electronic equipment, participation in world-wide contests, and assisting members to obtain an FCC license.

The 1967 activities of the DCYC included active racing by the Varsity and Freshman Sailing Teams and planning future club improvements.

The leading Green varsity skippers were Gary Sayia '69 and Doug Jones '70. They combined to win third place in the Annual Schell Regatta and third in the Boston Dinghy Challenge Cup Regatta. Sayia was second high-point man in the New England Championships last spring. In October, skippers Bill Rapf '68 and Dave Lilly '70 swept the Northern New England Championships. Team Captain Rich du Moulin '68, Lee Reichart '68, and Bill Rapf sailed to fourth place in the Ivy Championships held at Yale in June. Additional skippers and crews on the varsity included Bill Allen '69, Fred Severance '70, Bruce Senn '68, Steve Leslie '70, Woody Kiefaber '70, and Bob McGuire '69.

The prospects for the 1968 season are very bright, since only three of the top nine skippers are seniors. The spring schedule includes nine regattas, while the fall season will have ten.

The club executive committee has been working with both alumni and college personnel to create a plan of club improvements, including a new and larger fleet and an improved physical plant. The six Jet 14 sloops will be replaced by ten Inter-club dinghies.

Rifle Team

The Varsity Rifle team finally realized its potential this year and emerged from their long held berth in the New England League cellar. Posting a 3-2 record, the Indians finished in tie for second place. This marks the best performance of any Big Green marksmen since the present rifle league was formed.

Newly elected Captain Pete Tracy led the team both in high average and highest single match, with 267 and 277 respectively. Particularly proud of both Pete's and the team's effort was coach Gunnery Sergeant McIntyre, who in his first year at Dartmouth managed to get the previously failing team on its feet.

Next season promises even more improvement, as a strong freshman squad boasts several standouts who will be moving up to the Varsity ranks. A possible league championship could be in the offing.

Competing in its first official intercollegiate season this year, the Dartmouth Fencing Club met with mixed success in battling to a 1-4 record at mid-season.

Inexperience hurt as the Green bowed in several tightly-contested matches, but at the same time the young Indian team surprised their veteran opponents by nearly pulling off some major upsets. Opening the season early in December against Trinity, a team which finished second in New England last year, Dartmouth lost by only one point. The following week at Brandeis, eight bouts were lost by only one touch.

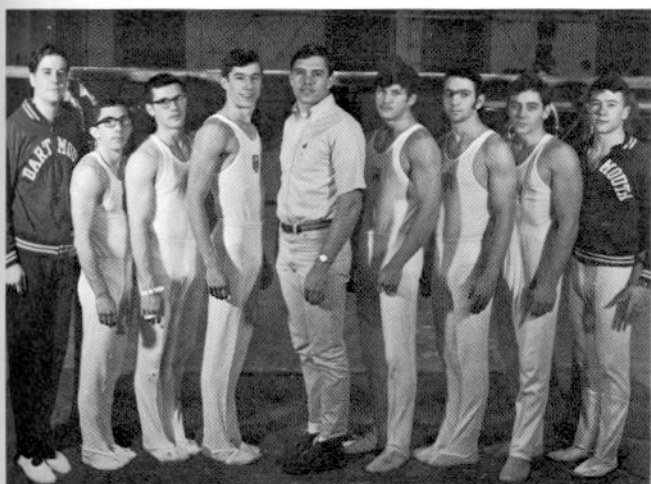

Similar losses plagued the Green until January 27, when Dartmouth began to win the crucial bouts. Fencing McGill University in Montreal, the Indians eked out their first win, 14-13, against a fine team. As this article went to press the Green swordsmen were looking for their second win at Southeastern Mass. Technological Institute. Other scheduled opponents were M.I.T., Brooklyn College, Holy Cross, and Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

The sabre team vanquished four of its five opponents, as Allen Brainerd '69 fenced to a 13-2 record; Captain Richard Livingston '68 added nine more sabre victories, and fenced as well in the foil and epee teams. Leading the way for the epee men was Richard "Hercules" Porter '70, who at mid-season stood 9-3.

The remaining starters for Dartmouth were: Roger Anderson '68, Frank Watkins '71, Roland Ng '70, Erik Forsythe, foil; John Weigle '68, Edward Haldeman '70, epee; and Don Healey '70.

Under the direction of Coach Ken Jones, the Gymnastics Club took on a full schedule of ten meets this winter. Through growing interest in the sport, an all-Ivy gymnastics league was formed, high-lighted by an all-Ivy championship meet at the University of Pennsylvania. Though young, the Dartmouth club has both desire and potential and is looking forward to the coming season.

Dartmouth Project Mexico is a College recognized, self governed organization of Dartmouth students whose work consists of eight weeks of manual labor in two slum areas of Mexico City.

Though the organization is nonsectarian, the work in Mexico City is coordinated by the Jesuit priests of Celamex, a community cooperative and special service center which includes a grade school, church, dispensary, job schools, and a cooperative store and bank. The priests of Celamex determine the Project's summer task, provide technical assistance through volunteer Mexican advisors and arrange free housing in middle class homes for the students. Beyond this, the project's members are entirely independent to complete the job with their own labor force, equipment, funds, and imagination. Upon completion, the priests then utilize the facility such as the new school at "Brick City" in a variety of long term, year round projects.

Dartmouth Project Mexico offers Dartmouth students a unique opportunity to explore a foreign country, to learn or improve in Spanish, to help impoverished people help themselves, and, consciously or unconsciously, to repair the sorely damaged image of the United States in Mexico.

This year the Geological Society enjoyed a wide range of activities. Having been routed from the second floor of Silsby, the club moved their lounge to Room 401 Silsby. However, executives Dick Birnie and John Pierce were quick to seize it for office space. In the meantime Bill Bridge completed the "Silsby Traverse" from 401 to the basement without touching the floor.

Faculty and students presented lectures at the Wednesday meeting. Those who went to Central America related very interesting experiences. Charlie Pineo collected four fifths of the world's supply of bannermanite—to the dismay of rock hunter M. C. Thompson.

For field trips, the club went to Tahawu, N. Y. and visited a magnetic mine. Over Houseparties, the society held a cocktail party at Edith Towers. A follow-up to the party was staged during the winter, and Y. P. Montagne raced John Snellenburg's "ROX I" special to the spring picnic at Storrs Pond.

"You guys have gotta be nuts!" is an oft-heard evaluation of a group of D.O.C. men by non-D.O.C. men when the latter spy the former embarking on another of the innumerable exploits of the indefatigable Dartmouth Outing Club. This doesn't bother us, though, when we recall that we're the largest, most diverse, and one of the most continually active clubs on campus. What's more, we're growing bigger and better all the time, with this year seeing the 59 year old D.O.C. at its greatest yet.

The Freshman Trip was bigger than ever keeping the Ravine Lodge filled or overflowing and sending half the freshman class tramping over the mountains or canoeing down the rivers of New Hampshire with the sharpest bunch of trip leaders ever assembled. The fall IOCA at Moosilauke, also bigger than ever, managed to assemble an impressively large number of really cute girls to the surprise of a few non-D.O.C.ers who stopped in to see what was going on and quickly decided to cancel any other road trip plans and stay around for the weekend.

Cabin and Trail and Winter Sports, though always at each other's throats, churned out an endless array of activities. C & T sent hiking trips out every weekend to all parts of New England, pausing only long enough to strap on snowshoes or touring skis when winter arrived. Winter Sports organized a record-setting schedule of ski meets involving some of the best skiers in the country, and opened up a whole new side of the Skiway for the recreational skier. The Ski School has expanded in both numbers and levels of instruction and the Ski Patrol has been keeping a tireless vigil on the snowy slopes. The Ski Team's record can speak for itself—great!

A reorganized Bait and Bullet Club has seen more action than ever, from deer hunting to snip hunting to deep sea fishing. The Mountaineering Club sent several men on first ascent routes up Mt. McKinley last summer and has been training beginners in rock and ice climbing during the year. Ledyard Canoe Club set all sorts of records in the World Championships in Europe last summer and came out with a new book and an article in National Geographic.

Valuable service was provided by the D.O.C. in several emergency situations during the year, but we feel our most worthwhile accomplishment was filling the outdoor world with Dartmouth men having a great time.

Bait and Bullet

Club activities started before college registration. Knoon led two freshman trips up to the Grant and Androscoggin River area and cleaned up on trout. Down at the Ravine Lodge the club sponsored the First Freshman Trip Snipe Hunt. One freshman actually caught a snipe, but the critter got his beak working and tore right through the polyethelene bag. That's the way it goes. Burlap sacks next year.

Schwedland literally filled the boat with walleyes for Activities Night. Galardy with his eight inch, "black power" worms and Knoon with his natural ability to put the fish down in any stream east of the Rockies never could figure out how Schwed always managed to get all the fish.

Up at the Grant on the opening day of the deer season nine club members, based at Peaks Cabin, tried their luck. Charlie Allen, the emmet freshman from Plymouth, connected on a monster doe that barely fit in the trunk of Badger's Volkswagen. It wasn't so bad hunting in the rain, Bait and Bullet members are tough. What hurt most was the tracking snow the Tanzi's got just after the club left. They got five deer. It's enough to drive a man to drink—or put a gleam in his eye and an itch in his trigger finger when he sees one of the many protected (and they know it) moose in the Grant.

On the bear hunt to Armington, Tim Rosenhan tried to get a hundred red squirrel pelts as a substitute for a bearskin rug. He almost made it. Peterson, with his gun three feet closer to the sky than anyone else's, was the uncontested champion on birds. Stuart and Sigsbee both shot deer at the Connecticut Lake over Thanksgiving. The club brought some decoys from Bean's for the duck season, but by the time they arrived the only legal game was rabbits and boar. The boar hunt was successful as usual—no one got gored or shot.

The guns got almost constant use. The boat cowered out behind Robinson Hall afraid of the Camouflage job Jon Stuart threatened to give it. Somehow it escaped for the year, but Stuart swore he'd get it sometime.

Unsuccessful deer hunters took out their frustrations on woodchucks. Unsuccessful woodchuck hunters made the safari to the Warren dump, via the Morse Museum, to shoot rats. Those who couldn't hit rats drank a lot.

And there was the usual range of characters—a solid block of hunters kept their resolution not to shoot any deer under 400 pounds. Knoon caught perhaps the world's first fourteen inch, six pound trout. Stuart knocked off a woodchuck at 500 yards.

Somewhere over venison and bear around the open fire, somewhere among the club members looking off into the sunset and shooting the breeze there was a grain of truth—but you had to look hard.

Cabin and Trail

It was the Year of the Apple for C & T.

Chairman Goldthwait led an expedition of six chubbers from Kinsman Notch to Hanover (46 miles) in one day. Not to be outdone, some Person called the Wimp extended the record to fifty-four miles. Reichgott set a few records of his own. The everpopular weekly trips were expanded to include ski-touring and winter ascent of Vermont's Mt. Mansfield.

Special events included the Second Annual DOC Ski-Touring Workshop, capably managed by George Kain. An October weekend saw the whole crew, including heelers, creosoting the Ravine Lodge in unbelievable time and revitalizing interest in I.O.C.A. Bradshaw Dorsey's Woodsmen's Weekenders reached new Highs at Middlebury, MacDonald, and U. Mass. Flash Thompson lived up to his name.

Bjorn Lange reports that most of the cabins are still standing, hopefully. The purchase of a new canoe pleased mild-mannered Director of Streambeds, Rowland French, immensely. Y. P. brought in a real pile of new men in an impressive sunrise ceremony.

Occasional feeds, efficient work trips and weekly shows rounded out this year's activities.

Ski Team

Following the loss by graduation of four outstanding members of the 1967 team which was undefeated in Eastern competition and 3rd in the NCAA's the beginning of the 1967-68 season saw the Dartmouth Ski Team as something of an unknown quantity. However, any doubts about the potential strength of this year's team were quickly dispelled in the pre-Carnival competitions. At the Orvis Slalom Derby Dartmouth skiers Rick Lounsbury, Dave Reid, and Hans Mehren placed consistently in the top ten. An indication of the team's Nordic strength came at the Lyndon Outing Club Meet with Bill Kendall and Ed Damon placing 3rd and 6th in the jump; and with Kendall and Steve Williams placing in the top ten in the cross-country. Kendall's performance earned him first place in the Nordic-combined. The Nordic squad picked up additional experience in the Olympic tryouts with Captain Sandy Cameron, Kendall, Williams, Chuck Eiriksson and freshman Dick Trafton competing. Special jumper Per Coucheron dusted off his skis to take first in the Hanover Invitational meet.

Both the depth and the talent of the Alpine team became apparent in races in the end of January and beginning of February. In the Dartmouth Special Slalom Hans Mehren took second and Bill Owen began to show his true ability. After a slow first run he turned in the fastest run on the second course to take fourth place. At the Johnson State Downhill weekend at Madonna Mt. the Dartmouth skiers really came into their own. The first race had Lounsbury second, Rolf Borgersen eighth, Reid tenth, and Mehren twelfth. The second race saw Lounsbury and Owen take first and second with Reid seventh, Ed Damon tenth, Borgersen twelfth, and Mehren fifteenth.

Although the St. Lawrence Carnival, usually a good meet in which to get experience, was cancelled for lack of snow, the team which competed in the Dartmouth Carnival was ready and skiing well. Here Dartmouth showed its real power in the slalom and jump. In the slalom Lounsbury, Reid and Owen placed 1, 2, 3 to take a lead that was never seriously threatened for the rest of the meet. In the downhill Rick Lounsbury completed his coup for the weekend by taking another first. Reid and Mehren placed fifth and sixth. In the cross country, won by Middlebury's indomitable John Morton, Dartmouth skiers Kendall, Cameron, and Williams placed third, seventh and tenth. In the jump the meet was really decisively won. Per Coucheron, Bill Cantlin, Larry Gillis, and Bill Kenall took the first four places to give Dartmouth the carnival title by the largest margin in recent years. Also noteworthy was the Dartmouth Freshmen's clear domination of their portion of the Carnival meet.

Williams' Carnival was less than successful for many reasons. There was no declared winner as the meet was cancelled after three events due to high velocity winds. In those three events, the best Dartmouth finishes were turned in by Dave Reid, who placed second in both the slalom and giant slalom for first place honors in Alpine Combined; and Captain Sandy Cameron who placed fourth in the cross-country.

At the Middlebury Carnival which was also the Eastern Collegiate Championships, skiing against an improved Middlebury team, Dartmouth was still able to score another substantial victory. In the giant slalom Mehren and Reid skied to second and third place finishes. Captain Cameron skiing much improved alpine placed eleventh to hold Dartmouth's position after falls by Owen and Lounsbury. The cross-country saw another win by John Morton of Middlebury. Dartmouth's Cameron, Kendall, and Williams took fourth, seventh, and fourteenth. In the slalom Lounsbury again showed his prowess by taking first. He was followed by Reid and Owen in fourth and fifth places to give the team a slim lead going into the jump. Despite gusting winds which forced the cancellation of the third round, the jumping meet was held. Larry Gillis, in one of his finest performances, outjumped the field by a total of twenty-four feet to take first place. His effort combined with a twenty-ninth place finish in cross-country gave him second place in the Nordic-combined. Coucheron and Cantlin placed second and third to give Dartmouth its second jumping sweep and a decisive victory.

As Eastern Champions, the Dartmouth Ski Team earned a bid to the NCAA's in Steamboat Springs, Colorado in late March.

The prospects for next year's team looks particularly bright. Added to varsity competitors like Rick Lounsbury, Ed Damon, Bill Cantlin, Larry Gillis, Chuck Eiriksson, and Jack Rice is a strong squad of freshman skiers. These include special jumper Scott Brady who represented the U. S. in the World University Games in Innsbruck, Austria; Nordic combined skiers Teyek Weed and Dick Trafton; and Alpine skiers Chuck Bent, Bill Ashton, Dan Gibson, and Sheldon and Gardiner Perry.

Good snow conditions and the new chairlift at the Skiway made 1968 a good year for skiing and for the Dartmouth Outing Club Ski School. Almost 700 Dartmouth students and faculty members participated in the ski rec program. With the newly initiated requirement of mandatory physical education for all freshmen, 1968 was also one of the busiest seasons in the Ski School's history. More than fifty student instructors, under the leadership of George Ostler, the Ski School Director, turned out to provide a consistently high quality of instruction. Our top head instructors, Dick "Pump" Stowell and Weems "Where is He" Westfeldt, played no small part in the success of the 1968 season.

This year also saw the first comprehensive program for beginning and intermediate racers. John "Sluggo" Lobitz, a member of the Dartmouth Ski Team for four years, returned to Dartmouth to work for the Ski School and was in charge of the racing program. This program included racing clinics for all qualified ski rec participants, a series of Wednesday slalom and giant slalom races, and the final intramural races in which all interested fraternities and dormitories competed for top honors. The successful intramural races and the even more successful instructors party, with Jim Schwedland playing the songs your mother doesn't know you know, provided a fitting climax for what had to be a good year.

Winter Sports

No one remembers exactly what happened at the annual Winter Sports-Cabin and Trail softball game last spring, but the consensus among the Winter Sports members present is that it was a smashing victory. Whose victory is uncertain, but we are sure that "smashing" applies to the event.

With clear heads and dedicated hearts the new council, under the chairmanship of Paul Grace, began to prepare for the competitions ahead. Large numbers of heelers were introduced to the joys of the spacious equipment room, where, under the tutelage of Andy Meyers, hundreds of red, blue and yellow slalom flags were sorted from the yards of telephone wire. Numerous useful articles were unearthed in the process, including thousands of D.O.C. Membership Cards from 1956. John Vogt lured several heelers into the fall woods to beat back the summer's growth of briars on the cross country trails.

Other council members mused deep in thought, asleep, while Jon Oplinger searched for batteries for the field telephones.

With winter came the snow, and with the snow, the races. In a moment of brilliant foresight, never matched in the long and glorious history of the organization, Stan Graves ordered both enough invitations for the Carnival Competitors banquet and enough snow for all the competitions. With such thorough planning, every major disaster was avoided. Among those avoided were: lack of hot cocoa, rain for Carnival and lack of competitors.

Also avoided was the electric timer, which failed to operate at all. All events were won with ease. Lonny Donovan, Dick Stowell and Gary Woodworth directed the slalom, giant slalom and jump respectively, while John Vogt wandered aimlessly in the woods searching for the Cross Country course he knew he had mapped out in the fall. John Migliori, after artfully doctoring the race results, scored a new victory for the Coup as he himself won 2nd place in the "A" category of the Hanover invitational jump. His jump was reportedly masterminded by Paul Tuhus, as a publicity stunt. Paul Grace could always be found at the finish line directing female spectators, settling arguments ("there are no poles for the last five gates") and solving problems ("how do I get LaFrance Bluing off my ski pants?"). Joe Schwartzman handed out sandwiches with great skill, and everyone wore flashy blue parkas that impressed some of the heelers and all of the Harvard team.

Mountaineering Club

During the 1967 climbing season, the D.M.C. climbed throughout North America. During the school year, club activities centered around the climbing class, involving about fifty beginners and weekend climbs to Vermont and New Hampshire areas. The highlight of the summer was a climb of the south face of Alaska's Mt. McKinley. Jim Janney, Paul Kruger, and Michael Zalewski, the latter being the route leader, ascended McKinley's south buttress. Dave Seidman was on the direct south face, a first ascent route and one of the most difficult routes in Alaska. Both routes were first American ascents.

This summer D.M.C. members will be climbing on expeditions from Alaska and the Yukon to the Cordillera Blanca of Peru.

Ledyard Canoe Club

The Ledyard Canoe Club provides ample canoe equipment, a club house, extensive training, and slalom races, but its greatest asset is the opportunity it offers for one, at least, momentarily to escape the academic life of Dartmouth. Whether an active racer, an avid camper, or merely a casual paddler, a club member can get out on the river with the worries of Hanover left far behind. Some use the club for its Thursday night feeds and cook-outs, while others use it for river cruising on the weekends. Others, such as the racing enthusiasts, use the club as a major sport, but many use it just for the opportunity to be out on the river and to enjoy a quiet afternoon from time to time.

The 1967 Downriver Trip was a great success, with eleven of the Twelve from beyond Ascutney finally reaching the Long Island Sound. After battling fierce headwinds throughout the voyage and making the many necessary portages, the Ledyardites readily welcomed their reception in Old Saybrook by the Big Green alumni.

Racing was again an active facet of the club, with a large turnout of boaters for the winter pool sessions, and a very successful spring training trip. Ledyard had a successful racing season in the spring, and four members were selected for the U. S. Team to compete in the slalom and wildwater events at the World Championships in Czechoslovakia. At the summer Championships, Wick Walker proved himself the leading American Canoeist in Slalom and John Burton the leading American Canoeist in Wildwater. In Kayak Slalom, Sandy Campbell placed 24th and Eric Evans 25th in a field of 42.

The year also saw many excellent feeds by the river, a brief encounter on the Ammonoosuc River, a good summer program, and the initiation of the Canoe Club into Freshman Trip activities. A gradual refurbishing of the clubhouse took place during the fall, and two new boat molds of the latest design were built by the racers for the upcoming season.

An award-winning history of the Canoe Club by Tom Falcon, '65 was published during the summer months. Beginning with John Ledyard and the much later founding of the club in 1920, Falcon moved to 1967, adequately recreating the club activities over the years.

Members of the Directorate were: Pres. Wickliffe Walker, V. P. John Burton, Secr. Edgar Rhodes, Treas. Malcolm Rubel, Heeling John Tallmadge, Cruising Josh Fitzhugh, Social Lee Pulis, Faculty Advisors Jay Evans and Walker Weed.

Ski Patrol

The 1968 ski season was an interesting one for the Ski Patrol. With the addition of the chairlift at the Skiway responsibilities were greatly increased. Along with the new lift came many side benefits—"All right, you guys, let's see you out there practicing that lift evacuation technique!" Fine, but do you realize that it is thirty below zero and the wind is blowing forty miles an hour, and those towers are awfully high. All of us are now certain that there is at least one person up there who loves us, for the lift never did break down. Two new sleds were added near the end of the season to replace some of the older ones at the Skiway. The new mark II box splint went through its first year of use without a hitch, but oh those cleats! They should have been bolted instead of screwed in!

Training was really the order of the year, with everyone getting ready to pass the senior ranking test, only to find that it was not going to be given at the area. The apprentices went through training ad nauseam, and will probably hate the patrol leader for the rest of their lives. But at least they know the difference between a long-leg splint and an arm splint. Let's have a round of applause for the hill captains: Gary Fitts, Dunc Wood, Larry Hall, Dave Stonebraker, and Lunchmeat, for the excellent jobs that they did running the show at the three areas. Looking back on the year it was one where there were a few waves upon the placid sea of existence, but one in which the job was done, and no bodies were found the next morning on the trails.

In keeping with this year's theme "Klondike Kaleidoscope," Winter Carnival 1968 offered a broad range of events. The revitalized Davis Ice Show with Dartmouth's own Evel Knievel, Phil Freedman, various figure skating greats, and the Palaeopitus-Parkhurst hockey ball game was a smashing success. The fairytale queen, Barbara Jean Harris, Trotier's Dog Sled, and the championship kayak slalom complemented by the Big Green Carnival Skiing wins, rounded out the weekend.

President Andy Hotaling's Winter Carnival Council all survived the weekend. Tired Pete McKeever, chief builder of this year's center of campus statue, Gold's Fool, is still thawing out. A. J. H.'s toughest assignment was to show CBS, without Harriet R's knowledge, the "esoteric life of a fraternity." The camera crew was busy all weekend and the CBS eye didn't miss a thing—except Tom Rush. So did we!

1969 promises more events, more snow, more statues, more posters, more girls, more beer, more work, and even more fun, if that's possible.

Army ROTC

The Army Reserve Officers Training Corps detachment at Dartmouth is an active and integral part of the College community. A varied and interesting program is pursued by students who are preparing to enhance themselves for careers as Army officers or civilians. Instruction is given in regularly scheduled classes and drill periods. Professor of Military Science, Colonel William L. Nungesser, directs the program. He is assisted by Majors J. H. Duckloe, F. J. Lynn, and F. J. Musmanno, and Captain S. J. McNulty.

Leadership is stressed during Wednesday afternoon drill periods where instruction varies from manual of arms and close order drill at Chase Field, to patrolling problems at the golf course, to films in Carpenter Hall. For the most part, cadets are given the opportunity to train other cadets, thus gaining valuable experience in leadership and methods of instruction.

An unusual feature of the Dartmouth Army ROTC brigade is its Mountain and Winter Warfare detachment. Cadets in this group are taught special techniques of cold weather and rough-terrain survival and are permitted to wear a distinctive black beret. The Mountain and Winter Warfare program produces some of the best "rock-climbers" in the East.

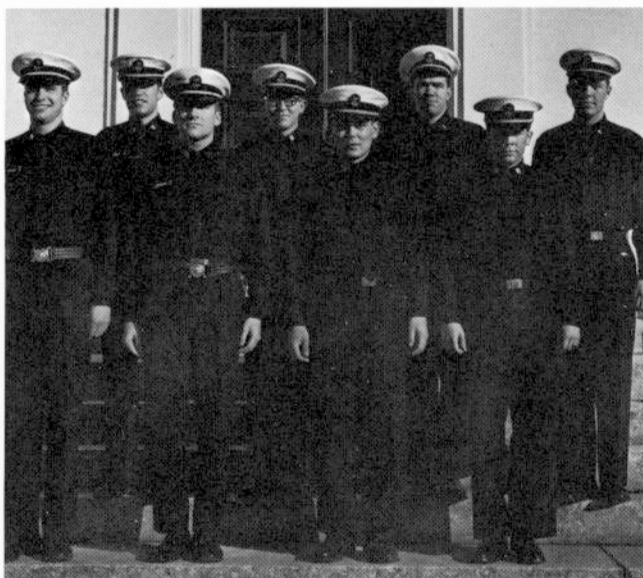

In addition, Dartmouth Army ROTC boasts a winning rifle team, a crack drill team, and its own publication, The Cadet. Extracurricular activities of the brigade include a fall and spring bivouac, the Military Ball, and the athletic rivalries between the Army cadets and the other services in football, basketball, and hockey. This year a joint bivouac was held with the ROTC Cadets of the University of Vermont at Union Village, Vermont.

As in past years, Dartmouth cadets distinguished themselves at Summer Camp, the six-week training program held at Fort Devens, Massachusetts. This year they won the coveted "Warrior of the Pacific Award" given to the college whose ROTC makes the highest scores in marksmanship during ROTC camp. The performances of the Dartmouth cadets demonstrated the high standards of excellence that these men must and will display in the service of their country.

The Dartmouth NROTC Unit, one of fifty-two such groups found at various colleges and universities throughout the country, is established to produce well-trained and educated officers. Dartmouth men have served their country well as officers in the United States Navy and Marine Corps, availing themselves of the many opportunities that naval service offers.

Under the command of the Professor of Naval Science, Captain E. J. Knoche, Dartmouth midshipmen pursue their chosen major field in conjunction with the Naval Science curriculum. While learning the fundamentals of seamanship a man becomes schooled in the distinctive art of being a naval officer. To this end he may pursue several undergraduate programs, Regular, Contract, or two year Contract. An option leading to a commission in the United States Marine Corps is also available.

This year saw the Navy ROTC excell in athletic and drill competition with the other ROTC units at the College. In a spirit of community involvement the Drill Team also participated in several local ceremonies. Such fellowship as seen at the Navy picnics, Dining-In and the Military Ball will not go forgotten in the Dartmouth experience.

In June as the midshipmen of the class of '68 receive their commissions as Ensigns and Second Lieutenants they take with them the knowledge and experience to excell in a most rewarding service. Besides classroom preparation they have the command presence gained in drill and in their positions as midshipman officers. In addition, a full summer cruise program provides a chance for practical experience and entertainment that takes a midshipman to ports in Europe and the Pacific as well as the Continental United States. Such men, proud of the heritage of their College and their service, will serve their country well.

Football

The loss of seven All-Ivy players from his 1966 Ivy League Co-champions caused Head Coach Bob Blackman to cautiously label 1967 a rebuilding year. But the Green utilized a great defense and a potent, if erratic, offense to compile an excellent 7-2 record and finish second in the Ivy League. Rarely have so many games in one season been decided in the last seconds, and yet rarely in Ivy League history have so many strong teams been trounced. Each week of the season, it seemed, different team appeared headed for the league championship until a powerful Yale squad proved to be too much for the rest of the league.

Several questions remained to be answered as the Indians opened the season against a highly touted U. Mass squad. The most important of these questions was how well the offense would move with converted halfback Gene Ryzewicz at quarterback and Captain Steve Luxford, formerly a rover back on defense, at Ry's old halfback slot. The Indians answered the doubts of their partisans with a convincing 28-10 victory. Trailing 10-0 early in the second quarter, the Green finally opened up as Ryzewicz led the team on a 77 yard scoring drive. Late in the quarter sophomore quarterback Bill Koenig made a spectacular debut as he hit fellow sophomore Bob Mlakar with a perfect 36 yard scoring toss. The second half was all Dartmouth, and the team had continued its tradition of opening game victories.

The following week the Indians were at home against a Holy Cross squad tabbed as the strongest team on their schedule. From the start, however, it was no contest, as Ryzewicz picked apart the Crusader defense with his passes and runs and Mlakar, starting his first game, rushed for 83 yards in 11 carries. The defense was again superb.

For the second year in a row the Indians were forced to play Pennsylvania without Ryzewicz. On a rainy day at Memorial Field Bill Koenig led the team to a 23-0 victory in his first starting assignment. Koenig hit end Randy Wallick with a 36 yard scoring strike to open the scoring, and just one minute later Rick Wallick returned a Penn punt for 59 yards and a touchdown. The Indian defense handed Penn its first shutout in 14 games as seniors Gordie Rule and Rick Wallick and sophomore Bruce Saylor were outstanding on pass defense.

In what seemed like a warm-up for the Harvard game, the Green rolled over Brown 41-6. Luxford continued his consistent play scoring two touchdowns and leading the team in rushing.

The next week in Cambridge the game that everyone thought would produce the league champion was everything it was built up to be. With Boyle and Luxford running well and Ryzewicz and Koenig passing accurately, the Green built a 20-0 lead going into the fourth quarter. A bad punt, a blocked punt, and an interception led to three Harvard scores as the Crimson miraculously took the lead 21-20. The Indians received the final Harvard kickoff with nearly six minutes to play in the game. With fantastic pressure on him, Ryzewicz calmly led the team down the field eating up yardage and time on big running plays. Given a second chance because of an off-sides penalty, sophomore Pete Donovan booted a 24-yard field goal with 57 seconds left to play to give the Green a 23-21 victory.

The Indians lost more than their nine game winning streak in New Haven the next week. Playing without safety Rick Wallick and rover Sam Faber, the team soon lost halfback Gordie Rule to injury, also. It made little difference, however, for Yale was at its peak in crushing the Green 56-15.

Defense was the key factor as the Green rebounded with a 13-7 victory over Columbia. Three goal line stands typified the play of the defense all year. Ends Randy McElrath and Pete Lawrence, and linebackers Norm Davis and Rick Lease were outstanding in the game.

As in the past few games, the breaks and the weather went against the Green in a 24-21 loss to Cornell over Houseparties Weekend. Dartmouth led 7-3 going into the fourth quarter when both offenses erupted for a total of 35 points. Cornell quarterback Bill Robertson had a particularly fine day in leading his forces in ousting the Green from title contention.

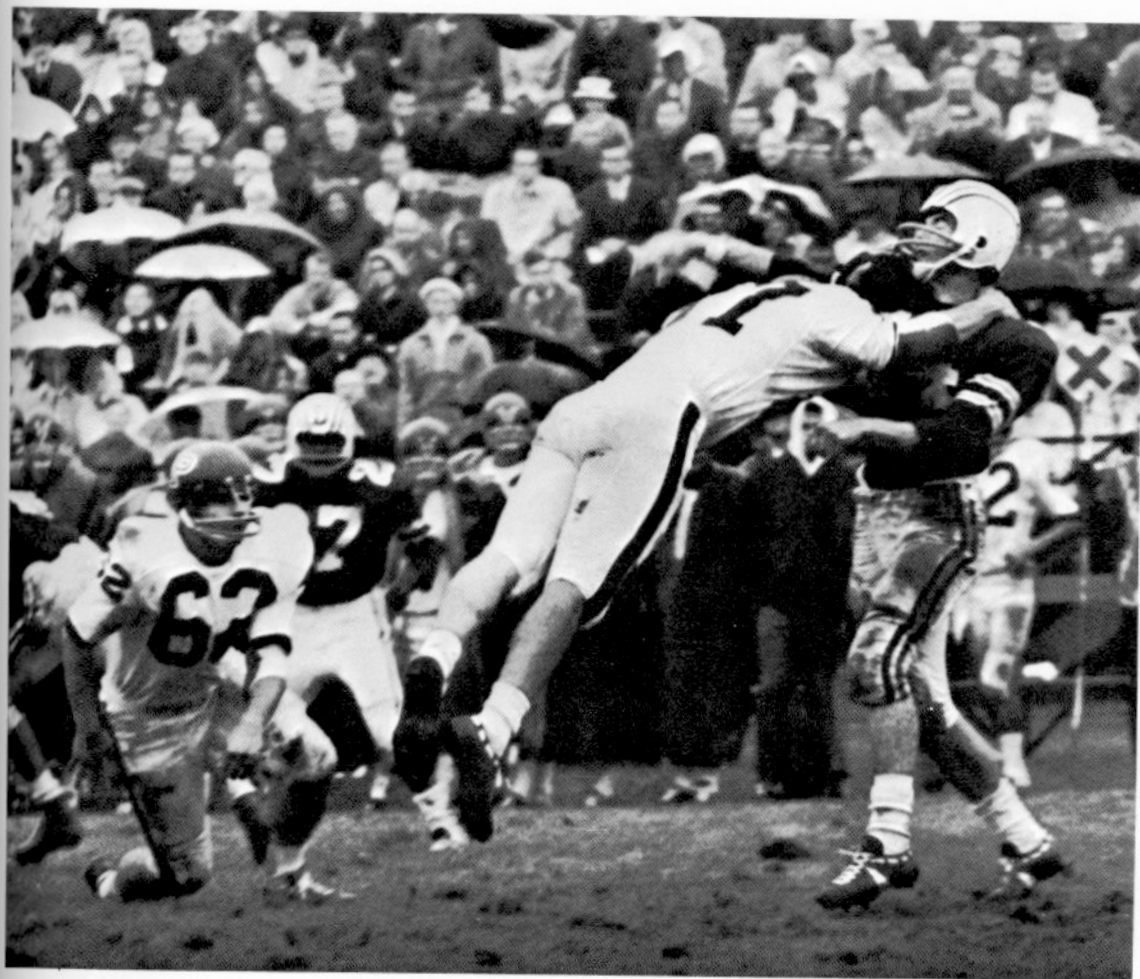

After the disappointing loss to Cornell there were many who felt the Indians were finished for the season. But the team played an inspired game and came out victorious, 17-14, against a Princeton club that had beaten Harvard 45-6 two weeks before. A defensive battle throughout the afternoon, the game wasn't decided until Pete Donovan's clutch 25-yard field goal with eight seconds remaining.

As a result of Yale's victory over Harvard, Dartmouth finished the season in sole possession of second place. Ryzewicz and Luxford led the team in scoring with 36 points apiece, and Mlakar led in passes received, punt returns and kickoff returns.

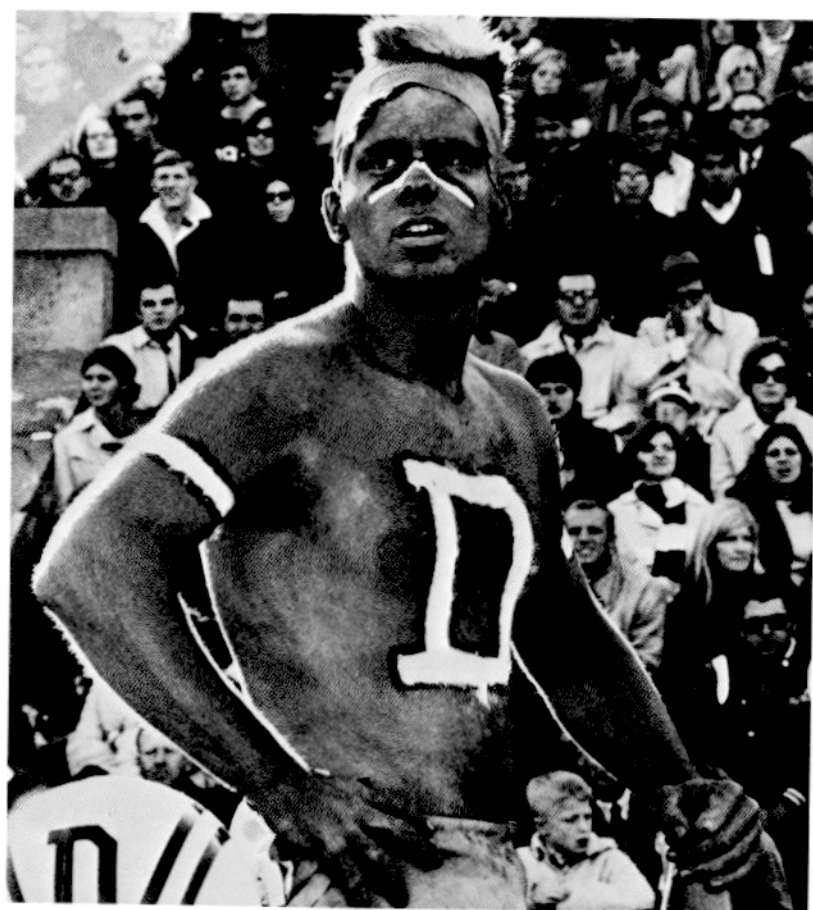

The team finished first in the league in defense as Davis, Rule and McElrath were named to the All-Ivy team. Offensive tackle Hank Paulson, whose outstanding blocking drew praise each week, was also named to the All-Ivy team.

In the three seasons that the seniors from this year's squad have played varsity football Dartmouth has won 23 games and lost 4. It will be difficult to fill the places of the four All-Ivy players as well as such players as guards Skip Small and Jerry Kirkpatrick, but with the aid of a fine freshmen squad, Coach Blackman anticipates another outstanding season in 1968.

Cheerleaders

"... Whether in defeat or victory, we are loyal just the same..." And as usual, Coach Blackman provided Dartmouth football fans with many victories and few defeats. Behind the team all the way yelling at the top of their lungs no matter what the size of the crowd or the score were the Cheerleaders. It is a small group, yet there are those....

Others contributed to the success of the football season; the Class of '71 built 3½ bonfires, Richard Anuszkiewicz, an artist at the Hop, added an oil painting to the team's trophy case, the band added some pep to the rallies when their slides weren't frozen and the students who welcomed the team back at any hour of the night added many undone assignments. All contributed their part to the Dartmouth Spirit.

There were many memorable moments for the cheerleaders: the last-minute field goals at Harvard and Princeton, the 500 gallons of New England Rum to keep the Indian warm at the snowy Cornell game, Bill Rollings' silent cheering, and some classic slogans like "Take Penn in Hand."

It was a typical Dartmouth football season: full of success and fun.

The 1967 Dartmouth cross country season was highlighted by the performances of Captain Steve Atwood and sophomores Earl McEvoy and Dave Ulrich. Primarily due to their efforts, the harriers were able to improve their record over the previous year's.

Coach Ellie Noyes' squad split their away opener by beating Lafayette and losing to Colgate. The following week in Hanover on the Pine Park Course they nipped Columbia while falling to Yale. Midway through the season Bill Bridges was lost to the team due to foreign study. His loss hurt the team and they were unable to win any remaining Ivy meets. In New Yorks the runners finished 8th in the Heptagonals by beating Cornell. With some promising freshmen and a handful of some good sophomores returning next year, the cross country future is bright.

Soccer

This year's soccer team was plagued with injuries which prevented it from fulfilling the early season expectations. Undeclared in four preseason scrimmages, the Green entered their opening tilt against Middlebury quite confidently. After a close first quarter, the Green broke out and went on to win 4-0.

The following week the Green was turned back by two strong opponents, Springfield and Amherst. In their next four clashes, their inability to score caused their defeat. In addition to poor marksmanship, the Green were beset with a rash of injuries to key personnel. However, despite these handicaps, they fought out a 0-0 tie with Columbia in New York. In this close match, they out shot their opponents, but failed to find the range. But what the offense lacked, the defense made up for. Leon Myrianthopoulos played excellently in defense of goalie Bob McGee, who continually thwarted Columbia to score.

On November 18 over Houseparties, the soccer team came to life and showed some of their pre-season form in defeating Cornell 3-1. After a scoreless first period in which the cold weather and muddy field hindered play, the Green erupted with two quick goals. Fullback Ed Heald scored one with an assist going to Captain Fred Palmer. Only minutes later Bill Staudt assisted by Palmer beat the Red goalie.

Continuing this fine caliber of play, the Green held Princeton to a draw for three periods. But the Tigers broke the Indian defense and went on to win 2-0. McGee's performance in the nets featured this hard fought match. If the Green had been able to capitalize on its scoring chances, they might have won.

The team thus finished with a 2-8-1 slate. Sophomore Pete Linton led the team with six goals.

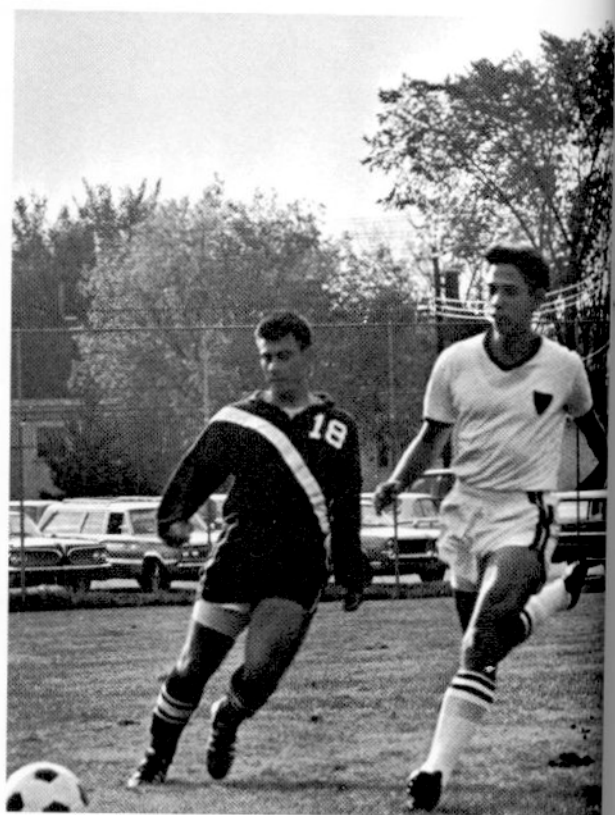

With this year's late season surge and with the addition of some fine freshmen from this year's 7-1 squad, hopes are high for next season.

Squash

Squash is another winter sport which has made immense strides in the last two years. This year, under the tutelage of second year coach, John Kenfield, the Indians captured their first Ivy League victory in five years by defeating Cornell 5-4. Roger Daly, a three year veteran, won the deciding point with a 16-15 victory in the final game.

Jeff Garten, a steady performer for the past three years captained this year's squad. His leadership and play sparked the team. Another player who distinguished himself during the campaign was the number one player, sophomore Geoff Scott. He became Dartmouth's first nationally ranked player in over six years. He merited this honor due to his fine showing in the Intercollegiate Squash Championships where he reached the quarterfinals.

Although the team's record was only 2-8, with a little luck two 5-4 setbacks at the hands of Williams and Wesleyan could have been reversed. However, with six lettermen returning and several members of this year's fine freshman team moving up to the varsity, the prospects of a winning season are good.

With their sights set on the NCAA Swimming Championships held in Hanover during spring vacation, the Green swim team compiled a 10-2 dual meet log. Built around a solid nucleus of All-American swimmers, including Captain Brad Lindeblad, the Indian tank men finished in a three way tie with Army and Princeton for second place in the EISL. They culminated their fine season by registering a third place in the EIAL tournament behind perennial champion Yale and Princeton.

Coach Karl Michael's forces opened the season with two easy victories over Williams and Brown. On the weekend, they convincingly defeated Navy. In their next outing, the Indians were given a scare by the Black Knights of Army. Due to an inadvertently reversed line-up, it took a spectacular effort from the freestyle relay team of Vance, Severance, Robinson, and Lindeblad to win the meet. The following weekend, against Princeton, the Green came up with a solid performance which included eight out of thirteen first places. However, it was not enough as the Tigers won 60-53.

An outstanding effort by Fred Severance and Mike Brown's victory over the defending Eastern diving champ sparked the Indians to a Winter Carnival victory over Harvard. On February 16 Don Schollander led the Eli squad to Hanover. Yale, boasting many of the nation's top swimmers, won the meet, but diver Mike Brown and sprinters Lindeblad and Vance earned impressive victories.

After defeating Colgate and Cornell, the Indians went to Princeton for the Eastern Championships. Making the finest showing ever by a Dartmouth squad they finished in third place. Highlights of the Championships were a one-two sweep in the fifty yard freestyle by Vance and Lindeblad, a victory in the 400 yard freestyle relay, Mike Brown's victory in the one meter diving competition, and the qualifying of all three relays for the NCAA Championships.

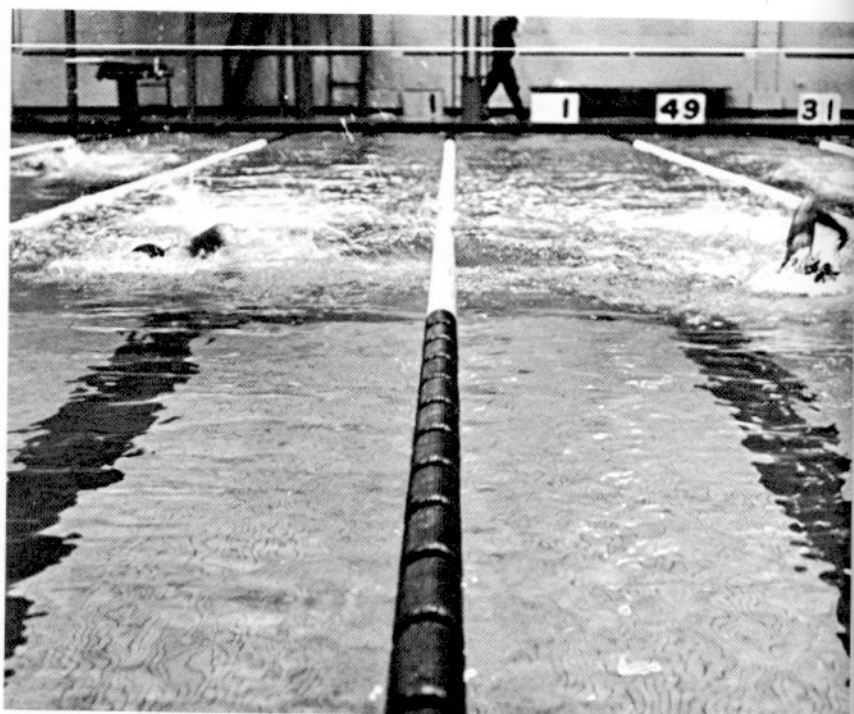

The outlook is bright for next year with only Lindeblad and backstroker Mark Battin graduating and several sensational Pea Greeners available to pick up the slack.

The 1967-68 Green hockey team was hampered by inexperience, defensive lapses, and an inability to finish off the big play. However, the Indians did play better hockey than their 4-19 record would seem to indicate. Hustle and desire enabled them to skate with and stay close to almost every team they played.

Although admittedly a rebuilding year, the season was awaited with high hopes due to the addition of some excellent talent from last year's freshman team. However, these sophomores at first had a hard time getting untracked. Despite these early season problems, the Green played quite well. They opened their season on the road against St. Lawrence and Clarkson, two of the East's most formidable teams. Battling all the way in both games, the Green fell by small margins. The next week the Indians evened their record by defeating at home Norwich and Middlebury. Then after exams, the club traveled to Boston to play in the ECAC Christmas tournament. The Green did not fare too well as they lost to both Boston and Northeastern.

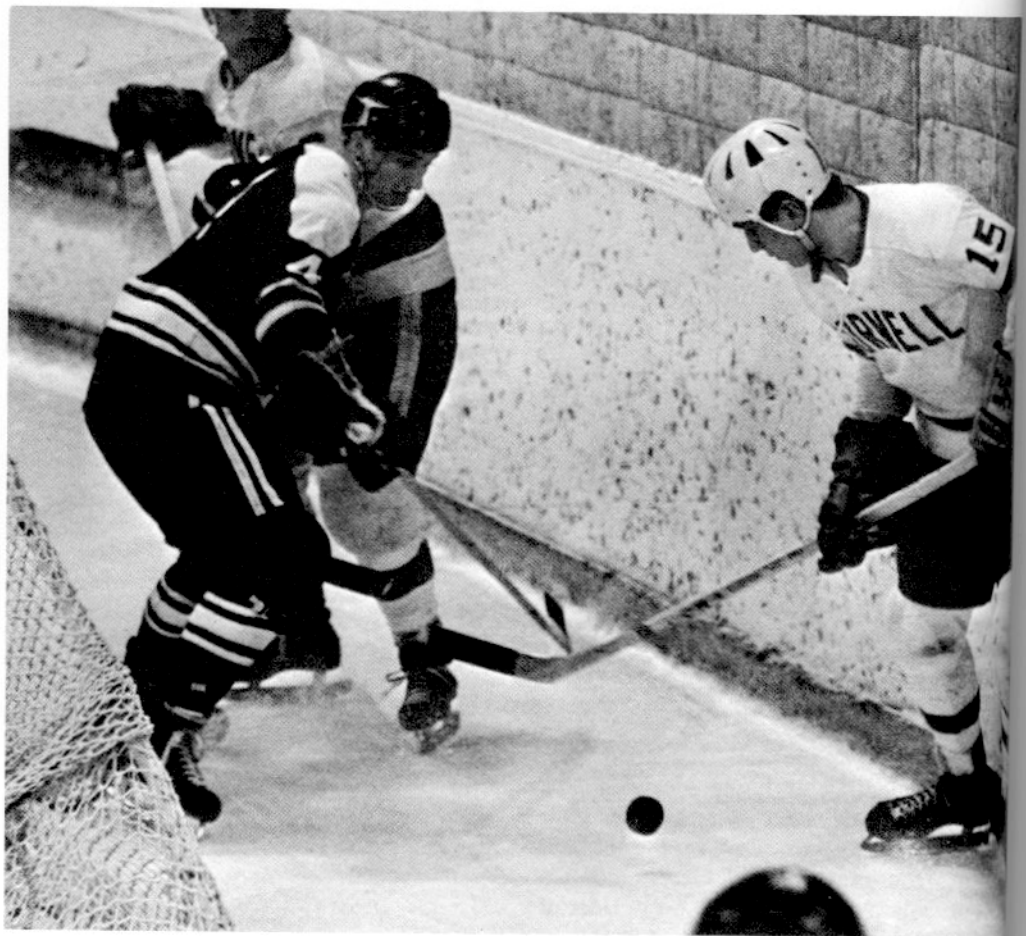

Despite the addition of sophomore Rolf Kielman, Denny O'Neil, and Tom Coffman to the team after vacation, the team found it hard to gather momentum. Inconsistency, due to the fact that they were not playing as a unit, plagued them. They shellacked Pennsylvania in Hanover 10-0, but down in Philadelphia lost to the same team 5-4.

As the season progressed, the sophomores gained more confidence which perked up the whole team. Playing now as a unit, they came from behind to dump Army. They closed the season with four strong games, which although losing effort, showed great promise for next year.

The player who kept the Green in most of the games was goalie Jim Cruickshank. He received the Martha Philan Award, which is emblematic of Most Valuable Player. Cruickshank was backed up by senior Bob Tharinger, who against Harvard filled in and turned in an outstanding game. Captain John Meehan, converted from defense to forward, used his rugged checking ability to pep up the third line. Tom Long, an alternate captain, was a steadying influence at first defense. Three year veteran Rusty Martin, a forechecking center on the first line, scored four goals against New Hampshire and the winner against Army. Sophomore Kent Nyberg with twenty goals and nine assists led the Green scoring parade. He was followed by playmaker Dave Hutton. A versatile performer Dick Patrick filled in at both forward and defense and contributed some timely goals.

Hustling junior Robie Cann was elected captain for next year's varsity. With another fine crop of freshmen moving up to the varsity, the chances are good that Cann will captain a winning team.

Eddie Jeremiah was to college hockey what Knute Rockne was to football or what John McGraw was to baseball. Because of Eddie's concern for college hockey in the early forties, the game is what it is today. Jeremiah helped start the National Collegiate Tourney, the Eastern play-offs, and the American Hockey Coaches Association. He was one of only two coaches ever to be voted National Coach-of-the-Year twice by his peers, and in both years his Dartmouth teams had a losing record. Present and past members of the coaching fraternity feel that Jeremiah was the greatest blessing ever granted to college hockey.

Yet, Dartmouth hockey was Eddie's greatest love. He was never blessed with children of his own, yet he always thought of the Dartmouth hockey players as his family. His counsel, to both undergraduates and graduates, helped many of his former players lick their problems. He treated his players as contemporaries and close friends, and yet he still had the rare ability to maintain discipline and respect.

In March 1968 over 300 former players and many of his friends gathered in Hanover to pay tribute to this man that in recent years was afflicted with incurable cancer. The occasion could have been solemn and tearful, yet Eddie kept the whole affair on a joyful plane. In his closing speech that noon he said, "I have had a very happy life at this place I love." All that year he had been racked with pain yet he lived by the motto that he asked each of his 25 Big Green teams, "Look Up and Keep Fighting."

Eddie Jeremiah is gone, yet I and many other fortunate men have had one great experience in common. We were fortunate enough to have known the great Eddie Jeremiah.

Abner Baker

During the past year Dartmouth College lost one of her esteemed coaches and the game of basketball one of its key coaching figures over the past thirty-three years. The passing of Alvin F. "Doggie" Julian in July of 1967 marked more than the passing of a fine Dartmouth coach. In a sense, Doggie's passing, as did that of Eddie Jeremiah marked the end of an era at Dartmouth and in intercollegiate athletics.

In an age when coaching trends seem to closely resemble the organization of the business world, Doggie Julian was one of the last of the true "character" type coaches, men whose personality alone influenced their teams, their contemporaries, and their sport. In his seventeen years of coaching at Dartmouth, Doggie left behind him a legacy of memorable experiences, outstanding athletes who matured under his guidance to take their place after college among the leaders of this country.

Doggie Julian came to Dartmouth in 1950 from the Boston Celtics. His last college coaching position had been at Holy Cross where his 1947 Crusaders had won the N.C.A.A. championship. When he came here, Doggie was faced with a rebuilding situation. The rebuilding did not take him long. He won 3 games his first year, 11 the next, 12 the next, 13 his fourth year for a .500 season and in his fifth year the Indians won 18 and lost only 7. This year, the season of 1954-55 was to mark the beginning of an exciting era in Dartmouth basketball history, for during a six season period from 1954-1960 the Indians were one of the East's leading quintets and most exciting, to say the very least. Utilizing the fast break and give-and-go style of basketball taught by Doggie, Dartmouth teams in the six years won 112 games while suffering only 45 losses. The Indians captured three Ivy League championships, advanced to the Eastern N.C.A.A. round in Madison Square Garden when they upended West Virginia and Hot Rod Hundley. These days were the days of sellout partisan crowds for every home game; crowds that would arrive two hours prior to a game to be assured of getting in and occupying a seat. The memories of the exciting chant of "Go Green Go" and of Doggie exhorting his team on are still very real to many who witnessed this era of Dartmouth basketball. Doggie brought life to the College and community with his exciting teams.

Doggie was most active in the National Association of Basketball Coaches and was president of this group at the time of his death. It pleased him a great deal that several of his former players followed his lead into his profession. Doggie's proteges have done very well by him and themselves in college basketball, Bob Cousy at Boston College, Joe Mulaney at Providence, Frank Offtring while coach at Holy Cross, Andy Laska at Assumption, George Faftan at C. W. Post to mention just a few. Doggie turned out many great men, several great players. The success of former Celtic ace Bob Cousy and present San Francisco Warrior star Rudy LaRusso are just further attestments to the ability of Doggie Julian.

Doggie Julian will be sorely missed by basketball and by Dartmouth. He will not be forgotten. His vast knowledge of the game, his unique insight into personnel, his wit, his stories, his personality continue to live on. There are few places in the country where collegians play basketball that Doggie has not been and that do not remember some story about Dartmouth's late and beloved "character" coach.

Basketball

Picked to finish near the bottom of the Ivy League, the 1967-68 Indian quintet gave Dartmouth basketball fans something to cheer about for the first time since the 1959-60 season.

Coach Dave Gavitt, in his first year as head coach, did a remarkable job in bringing along a club that started four sophomores in nearly every game. The squad's inexperience was particularly obvious as they lost their first nine games of the season. Part of the reason for this was the high caliber of competition that the Green met on their Southern trip over Christmas vacation. Opponents such as Miami and Santa Clara prepared the team for their Ivy League schedule.

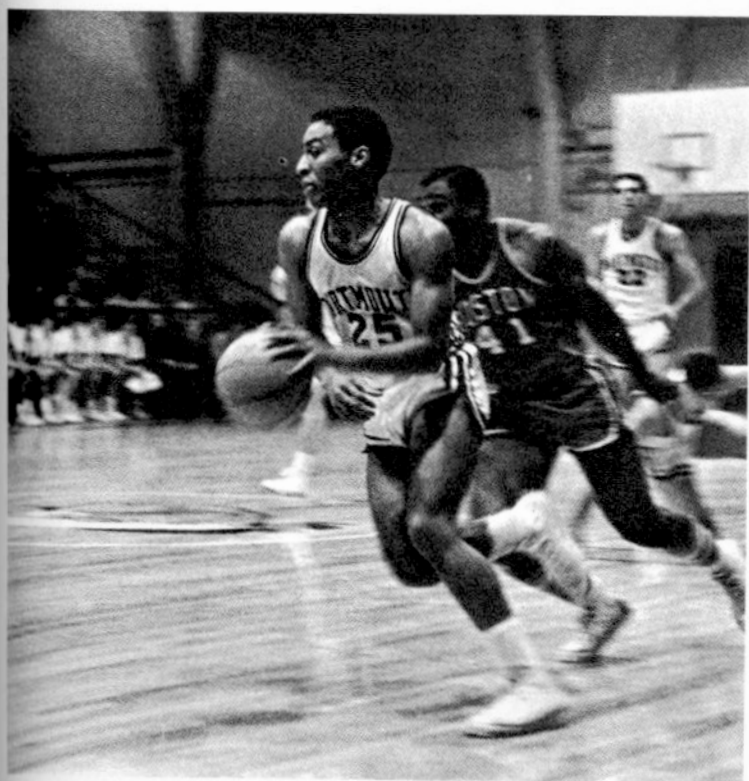

After losing their first league game to Princeton, the team bounced back in what proved to be typical fashion with a victory over Penn the next day. When the squad next defeated Harvard they were suddenly in third place in the Ivy League.

By this time the Indians had begun to play as a unit. Henry Tyson, the team's high scorer, was twice picked for the ECAC's weekly all-star team. Forwards Alex Winn and Captain Joe Colgan, both back in the lineup after early season injuries, had begun to hit their stride, and Greg Pickering was consistently pulling down ten rebounds a game in addition to leading the team in assists. Tom Reddy, another sophomore, provided floor leadership with his consistent playmaking.

Yet when the team lost to Yale in a close game, many observers braced themselves for difficult going. Once again, though, the team bounced back with victory—this time over Brown. The next four games were with Columbia, seventh-ranked nationally, and Cornell, victor over Columbia earlier in the season. The game with Columbia over Winter Carnival, though it was a loss, was possibly the turning point in the season. The Indians miraculously led by as much as 14 points and went into two overtimes before succumbing to the Lions. A one point victory over Cornell two days later, and a two point victory over the Redmen the following week put the Indians solidly in fourth place with hopes of third.

The first victory over Princeton since 1961 and the first Dartmouth victory at Princeton since 1958 might well have been the most satisfying victory of the season for both the coach and the team. Tyson was 11 for 18 from the field with 25 points, and Winn hit on 9 of 16 shots for 22 points. With a shot at third place the Indians dropped games to Yale, Brown, and Harvard in the final week of the season and finished in a tie for fourth.

With centers Jud Burnham and Bill Stableford, and forwards Bob Sturges and Karl Steinmanis among others returning to aid the four starting sophomores the 1968-69 season should be even more exciting than the past one.

Winter Track

Though the Indian thinclads endured another losing indoor track season, they did improve over their previous season in winning three of eight meets.

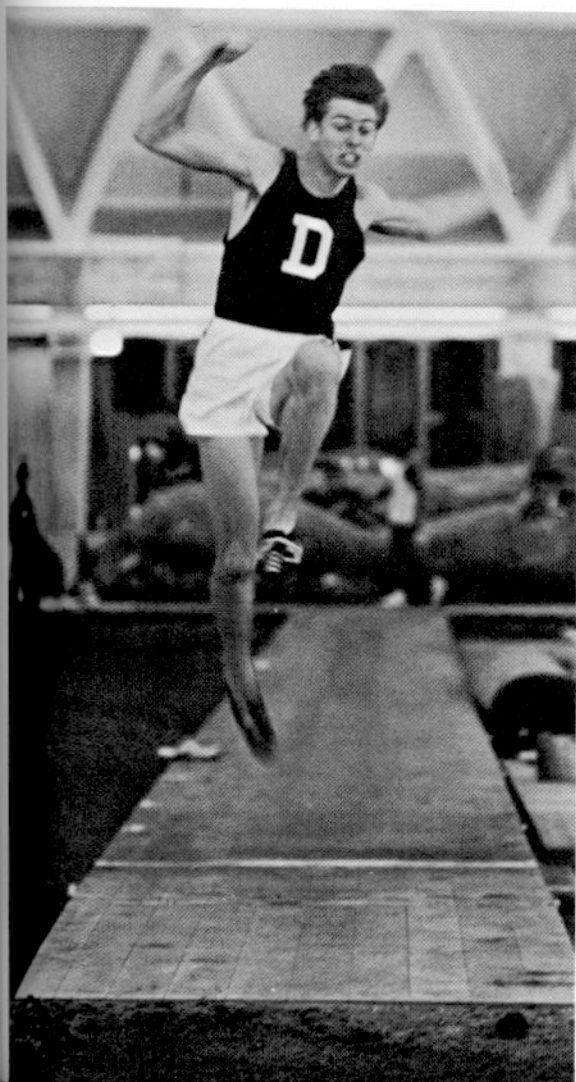

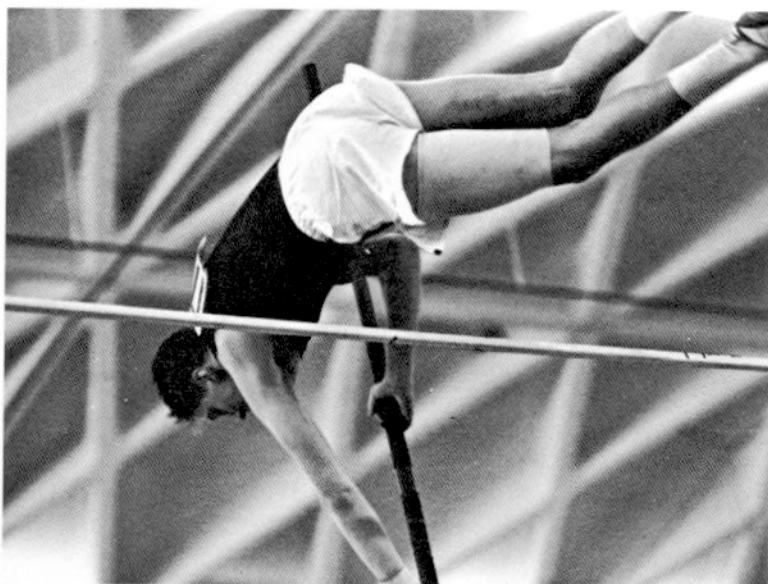

As expected Coach Ellie Noye's squad was strongest in the long distance runs and the high jump. Senior Captain Steve Atwood paced the Green in both the two mile and mile runs with consistently strong performances. In the high jump junior Chet Halka was a standout. As Dartmouth record holder and defending Haptagonal champion in the event, Halka figured to be one of the team's chief point makers. Juniors Dave Warner, Mark Upton and Mark Alvarez were the middle distance and distance runners, while sophomores DeWitt Davies and George Remmer dominated the weights.

Following a one point loss to Cornell, the squad bounced back to beat Colgate. Victories over Boston University and Brown gave the team hope for next year but not for their meets with traditional powers Harvard and Yale who once again beat the Indians handily. The season ended with an eighth place finish in the Heptagonals due to Halka's third place finish in the high jump.

Wrestling

A sophomore and junior dominated wrestling squad found victories hard to come by this year, but there were several fine individual performances over the season.

In dual meets the matmen were most successful in victories over Amherst and Worcester Tech. A last match victory by Ed Smith in the unlimited division provided the winning margin over Amherst while the squad soundly trounced Worcester Tech in the last dual meet of the year. In that meet Captain Pete O'Keeffe at 130, Chris Nintzel at 125, Dick Neuhoff at 145, Art Brown at 160, and Bill Darter at 167 all pinned their opponents and quickly put the match out of reach. After this victory the grapplers went on to the New England Championship tournament where Art Brown, the only Indian to place, finished fourth.

Baseball

Dartmouth's 94th baseball season was an exciting blend of outstanding individual performances and team excellence. It was a season marked by Dartmouth's first no-hitter since 1928, three successful hidden ball tricks, a snowed-out ball game in late May, and as many victories as any Dartmouth team has ever compiled.

Coach Tony Lupien's crew wound up with a 18-10 record after a disappointing loss to Boston College in the first round of the NCAA Region III Tournament. Relying on speed, defense, and timely hitting, the team successfully met nearly every challenge until the final week of the season. Lack of pitching depth was the only pre-season concern, but led by senior Jim Shaw and junior Dolph Highman, the staff was usually more than adequate and at times superb.

Led by Captain Bruce Smith, the Green quickly established themselves as one of New England's finest teams by drubbing Amherst 24-0 in the first week of the regular season. Pitcher Glen Culbertson won his third straight game, a one-hitter, and left fielder John Blair set a Dartmouth record with seven hits in seven at-bats. After losing the home opener to Yale, the Green went on the road and beat Harvard.

Boston College, and Holy Cross in succession. The Indians then faced Princeton at Memorial Field in a key game. The team won in spectacular fashion as southpaw Shaw made Dartmouth history by pitching a no-hitter.

Ten days later the Green staked their 6-1 league record against Army's 6-0 record in the biggest game of the season. Once again Dartmouth triumphed spectacularly. This time Highmark's pitching and junior Bob Thomas' two homers led the Green in their 9-1 victory.

Dartmouth played host to Boston College in the first round of the NCAA Regional Baseball Tournament. In the first day doubleheader the Green had to rally in the ninth inning of the second game to stay alive. On the following day the Indians held a 13-3 lead when the roof caved in as the Eagles rallied for a 15-13 win and the season was over.

Shortstop Mickey Beard, first baseman Thomas, and second baseman Gene Ryzewicz were selected to the first team on the EIBL and all New England all-star teams. Their EIBL batting averages were .343, .375, and .374 respectively. Pitcher Shaw was also a first team EIBL selection as he posted a league record of 5-1 and an ERA of 1.26.

Golf

The fine play of Ken Kotowski and Captain Jack Ferraro plus the addition of some talented sophomores to the squad helped Bill Johnson's Indians post an 8-8 overall record.

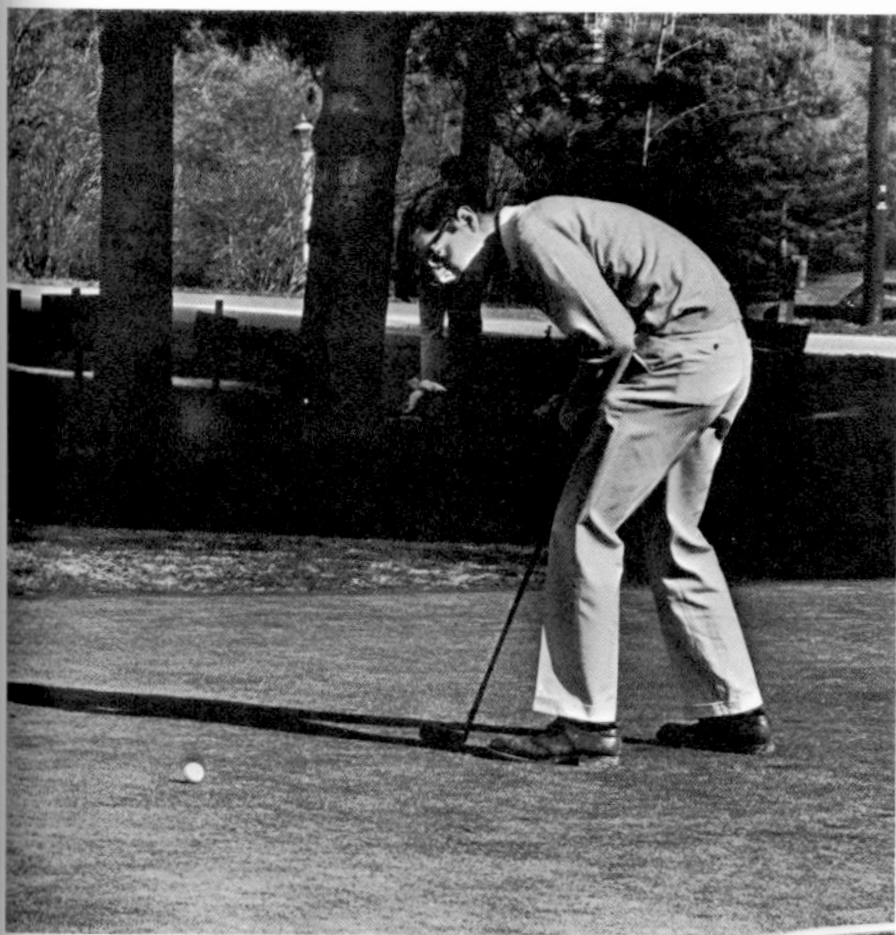

In addition to Kotowski and Ferraro, who between themselves won eighteen matches, sophomore Barry Simpter and junior Jeff Le Veen achieved winning records. John Van Dyke, Ralph Woodman, and Dick Walden provided good depth at the other four positions.

The Green were 2-2 during their spring tour through the Carolinas defeating Vermont and George Washington. They returned to Hanover and compiled a 6-6 record scoring victories over St. Michael's, the University of Massachusetts, Villanova, Brown, Brandeis, and Springfield.

Two highlights of the season were the third place finish of number one man Kotowski in the New England Championships and Captain Ferraro's hole-in-one which he sank during the 6-1 decision over St. Michael's.

Tennis

In John Kenfield's first year as tennis coach the Green compiled one of the finest records in Dartmouth history. Led by Captain Charlie Hoeveler, the team was 14-5 over all and 5-3 in EITA competition. Featuring an excellent serve and volley game, Hoeveler was 21-4 in singles competition highlighted by his first place finish in the New England Championships at Yale. The team's number two singles player, Bill Kirkpatrick, also had an outstanding season compiling a 16-8 singles record. Kirkpatrick's strong, consistent ground strokes complemented Hoeveler's stylish play to form an awesome doubles team. Their 22-1 record was marked by a first place finish in the New England Championships.

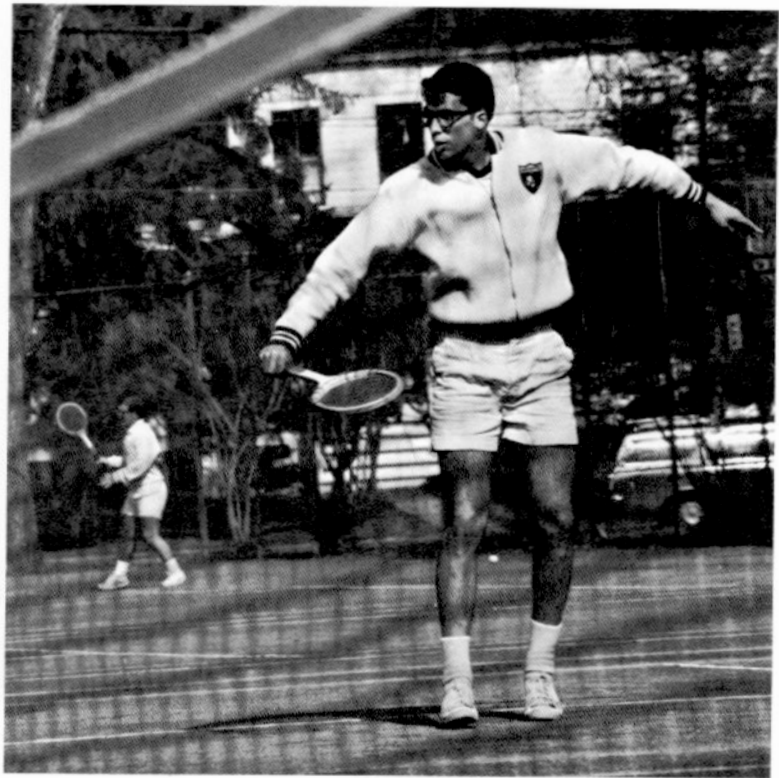

The team had great depth with senior Curt Anderson and juniors Skip Croninger and Roger Gutner playing featured roles.

In addition to their second place finish in the New England Championships, the team won impressive victories over Williams, Amherst, and Pennsylvania.

Lacrosse

The 1967 Dartmouth Lacrosse team was plagued throughout the year by inability to put four good periods of play together. Thus the Green were only able to record a 3-8 season.

The losing season can be attributed in part to heavy graduation losses and the fact that practice sessions were limited due to frozen fields. Even on the Southern trip, the weather was terrible, allowing the Tribe to play only one match. This was a hard fought defeat at the hands of a more seasoned University of Baltimore team.

Back in New England, the Green started quickly and defeated Holy Cross down in Worcester. The attackmen constantly peppered the Crusader goalie but could not seem to put the ball in the net. Finally the Green broke through the Cross defense and went on to win 6-3.

In the Brown game, John Eisold led the Indians with a brilliant performance. However, the failure to sustain an attack again haunted Coach Whitey Burnham's men and cost them a victory. Likewise in the Harvard game, the Green fell apart in the closing stages of the game to squander a 3-0 third period lead.

The Williams game marked the debut of goalie Bob Tharinger, a converted hockey goalie, who replaced Gary Rubus, in the nets. Eisold helped make Tharinger's first start a successful one as he found the range with his shots.

Injuries figured prominently in the 1967 season. Eisold and Bob MacLeod were lost for a large part of the season, while others were handicapped by minor injuries.

Captain Grant Monahan, Bill Rich, Wells Chandler, and Dick Curtis manned the midfield positions. Bill Calhoun, Jeff Norton and MacLeod protected goalie Tharinger from their defensive posts. While Rob McCormick, John Parthemore, Bob Dobbins, and Eisold did most of the Green scoring from the attacking zone.

Leading scorer McCormick led the team in scoring and was an honorable mention All-American.

The 1967 Dartmouth Track squad was similar to the 1966 squad in that it included several fine individual performers, but lacked the depth to be a consistent winner. The team was further hampered by injuries to two of its key performers, junior Gordie Rule and senior Harris Wagenseil. Wagenseil, captain of the team and Dartmouth record holder in the pole vault, missed several meets and was never in top physical condition, while Rule, the Dartmouth record holder in the 440 yard hurdles, was plagued by a pulled muscle throughout the season.

The team opened the season with a first in the triple jump in the Boston College Relays. After a loss to Harvard and a victory over Holy Cross, the team participated in the annual Heptagonal Track Meet held at Army and placed ninth. The best performances by the Green were a fifth in the triple jump by junior Jim Burin and a fifth in the long jump by sophomore Don Johnsen. The team closed with a dual meet against Springfield which they lost by a close margin. A strong performance by the Freshmen squad gives Coach Ellie Noyes hope for a more solid team in 1968.

Due to the fine showing of the 1966 Indian crews, hopes were high for another successful season. These hopes, however, were never realized. The basic difficulty was an inability to practice daily due to wintry conditions which continued into the middle of May. Even at the Kent School in Connecticut, where the team worked out over spring vacation, ice in the river allowed only a minimum of practice. Thus the crew got off to a late start and was never able to gain the momentum to overtake their more polished rivals.

The heavyweight crew under Coach Pete Gardener and captained by bowman Frank Smith opened its season in Providence where Boston University defeated them for the Atlanta Cup. Then during Regatta weekend in Hanover, M.I.T. beat them to the finish line to capture the Packard Cup. Two weeks later the Green crew traveled to Madison, Wisconsin, in defense of the Cochrane Cup which they had won in a thrilling upset the year before. However, the home crew, Wisconsin, thwarted the Indian's hopes for continued possession of the cup. In the Intercollegiate Rowing Regatta the crew, again plagued by bad weather, lost in a downpour.

The lightweight crew under mentor Jud Meade lost to M.I.T. in both the Duran and Biglin Cup races. Karl Friberg in the third seat captained the German rig which employed the Ratzeburg style of rowing.

Due to the previous year's success including a third place lightweight finish at the Eastern Sprints and a Junior Varsity Championship at the IRA, the Board of Trustees extended full financial support to rowing. This giant step opens a new era of promise for further success.

Rugby

Rugby at Dartmouth is a long standing tradition and a unique experience. Because they are independent of the DCAC, the Rugby Club must schedule their own games and impose their own rigorous practices.

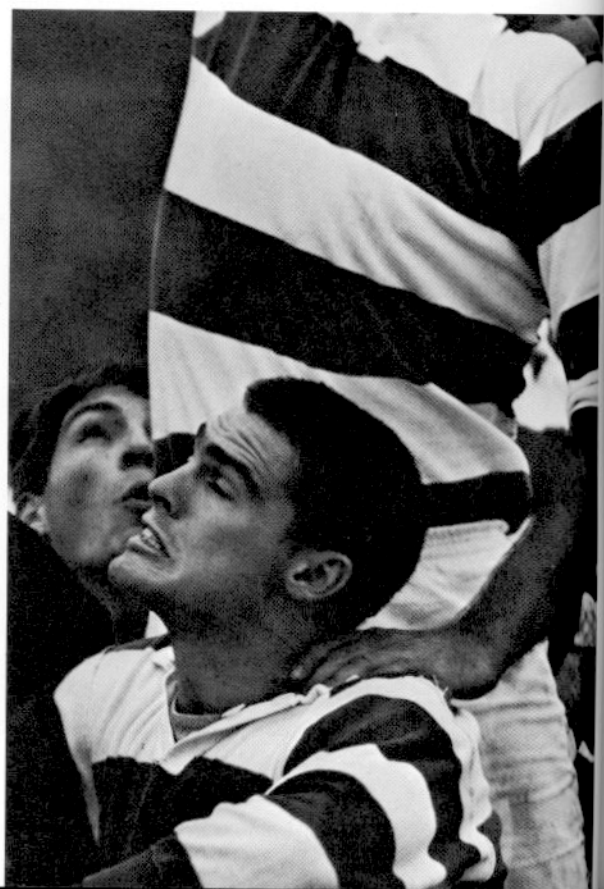

The 1967 club began the season with their annual spring trip to Nassau. The team took second place losing to Holy Cross 8-6 in the last 15 seconds.

Returning to Hanover, the "A" squad lost a close match to Williams 13-11, while the "B" team won 6-0. In their next match at Amherst, both teams won easily.

Following these victories, the ruggers met Yale at Hartford, Connecticut for the Hartford Cup and lost both matches. The club reached a peak over Green Key weekend as both the "A" and "B" teams beat Harvard decisively. They closed out the season with victories over the Montreal Wanderers at Montreal.

President Tenny Dean was awarded the Leishing Award for outstanding play, and his father was given a replica of the award for service to the club.

The outlook for next Spring is bright as President Al Raymond and Captain Mike O'Brien look forward to the return of several starters from this fall's injury plagued club, and to a trip to Bermuda.

Intramurals

Based on the number of activities offered and the number of students participating, the intramural program at Dartmouth is extremely successful. Over 61 percent of all students participated in twenty-four activities last year. Students may compete in activities ranging from touch football to speed skating to chess. Intramural points for fraternities are calculated from the points accumulated in the preceding Spring Term and Fall and Winter Terms of the present academic year. Last Spring's leader was Bones Gate, and the Fall Term leader was Sig Ep. The combined leader before Winter Term competition was SAE.

In dormitory competition the intramural year is the same as the regular academic year. The Fall Term leader this year was Richardson.

Swan song '68. Well, it was really something else. How could it go so quickly? Charlie grinned and looked on benevolently from the fish bowl while the house roared on. Hersh bought the kegs and bands and mixed the lousiest drinks. Gray cloud A. J. learned how to fly. Graves went to K.U.A., wooed Mary, and joined Casque and Humanity. Marsh turned into Wolfman and young wolf and played hearts round the clock. Jeeps led the jocks and got engaged. Dick smiled, bled, and ate canned spaghetti all the time. Brets battled through flags, eagles, and wild dogs to graduate. Billy bowled, skied, and left. Brooks became dirtball, beer can, and feed bag. Loom man Stevie got into law school and poker games. Ocie was absent only from the house, not the sports. Berent was smooth, Astrid, absent. Noel and the J.C. vanished on the third floor with Hall, who absconded with the treasury neatly under wing. Bear stayed up late and had barefeet, what else? Larry sold sandwiches, sired Sam, and lost his hair while Stech summarized Clairly at meetings. Oh yes, and Karl blew her mind. Could we forget all that? We hope not.

With a spirit of reform sweeping the nation, we returned to the Northeastern Mecca of education with second thoughts about "our business here." Through a quick impartial vote we decided repentance was our chosen course.

Montgomery Wards supplied Conestoga wagons and then we started to auction off all of our frivolous playthings. The tap system went to a Nichiren Buddhist nursery school at the absurdly inflated price of forty-seven cents.

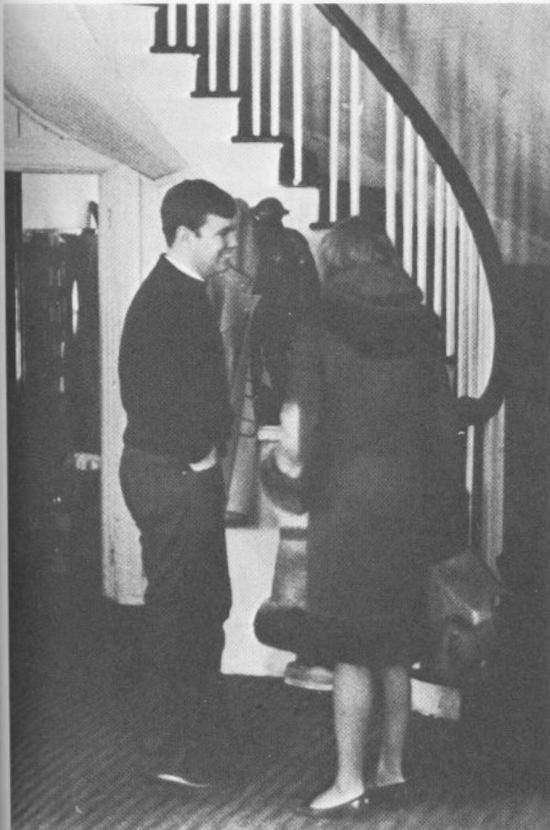

Several men changed their majors—among the popular new choices were: 1. Wheelwrighty 2. Battling cholera 3, and natural childbirth in an oxcart. Finally on memorable Friday night we left under cover of darkness (those persons in the accompanying picture are wax dummies cleverly crafted in our secret workshop), all persons being equipped with false ID's.

About two weeks later we came out of our basement reverie and regretfully began the term. So ended any semblance of life on earth. Long live Rondo Hatton!!!

Beta Theta Pi

The year began with the arrival of the brothers for rush. It appeared that Guns still had his rope, both arm and nose varieties. Big John was an obvious addition, physically anyway, and the Works brought off a good rush. Wooglin was invoked in song and prayer and school started with a bang, symbolized by Hawk's car. Thursday night brought the return of the supper club, a cult of Eleanor worshippers also known as the Wednesday evengers and weekend warriors. Skins officially went into debt, and seemed to like it there; Duke remained in bankruptcy all year, but in a different way. Jumbo got the machine grinding slowly, and everyone else was late too, until exams. Smiley returned without Darrel, which made us all sad, and the Mosey, which made us sadder. Ice got left out, but got an autographed copy; the clinging vine flowered on, but that was no consolation.

Tup took gas watching his skis too closely, but later the youngster took it twice in a week, and now his best friends are in the emergency room. Boyle got down on the birdfox, despite arduous competition and thus joined ranks with Cro. Beta Jack and Rizwicky kept pretty quiet, but Sax didn't, to no one in particular's surprise. Gordie did nothing but get a draft, and that one did surprise a few people. All this went on while Robbie booked, so it's news to him too. The Butterfield coke man finally took shape and what a shape it was.

This was the year of the Dragon. No mail as usual, senior apathy, diets, eating downtown, and shining the plaque.

Why not, says I?

Thus saith the Lord: "If I had intended for these Aegis articles to start off discussing rush, I would have put rush at the beginning of each year." And so He did, and rush was at the beginning of the year, right along with Freshman Week, and right after all the Deke frat-lodge brothers returned from the long, hot summer. How convenient.

The Lord of Hosts: and hosts are what we got, as we ended up sinking 27 pledges, or some other such number easily divisible by Three, thanks to the efforts of our calm, cool and serene rush chairman, Guiseppe. That night was quite a show, as Mike Dyer learned the effects of evil brew, and we communicated transoceanically with Brother Kelly, our man in England.

Yet Once a Little While: and Deacon soon found out that he had competition. First there was this cat. We had just finished using up eight of his lives, when a dog by name of Philip moved in. Philip was not housebroken. Philip did some relatively unfortunate things. Then Philip left. For the Argentine, hopefully, where he can chew grass in peace.

And I will shake: then there was the fall weekend, when gravitation or levitation or some sort of perception came to the DKE house in the form of a seance. All of the dates had their fortunes, or misfortunes, forecast for them. Everything came true.

The Heavens and the Earth: and the continual flight continues between the inhabitants of Asgard and the lower realms of the second floor. The purity of Nirvana, of course, triumphs always. Only stout hearts can live on the third floor. Unfortunately, the Mugwump Room took its toll.

The Sea and the Dryland: the liquid flowed freely, as coffee became a morning institution, to sober everyone up for the day to come. George's coffee tasted like mud as often as not, but at least it was better than Donnelly's. Sour hours became a weekly tradition, and Dale turned into a temporary lush. Such is the life, that to be handled it must be bridged. And I will shake All Nations: Beware, beware.

*And I will shake,
The Heavens,
The Earth,
The Sea,
The Dryland,
All Nations, I will shake.*

We returned to fall (as Kurtz did) to find Coops in the beer and Strait Nait spreading the word while Tooth spread puss and the Panda became a Walrus after we got a bunch of new guys who became people—Roscoe and Speed and Ba Lamb and Gambo and Pooch and all the rest—after a time spent rolling on the floor and dressing resplendently and worshipping Mosgib Pho and Honest Jason made Di an honest woman and Straight Tom bent a bit and Wilbur did too and Eli Dragonfly started borrowing money instead of tubes and Fast Peter was and Dorf wasn't but Jellyman was and Powell was, too, and Grog did and then stopped and did again and stopped and McQueen made more money and Demerath grew a stash and Kelsey and Wee Boddy smiled and Eldon did as always while Shultz and Donohue and Beck, Who, and Drake, and Love came back home from Europe but Buzzard stayed to get to know the people better, while Sheep stopped eating Grass and called Crack a hippie and Yoyo a Sayia and it was a good year. And while all this was happening, the Risman was quietly piling up points of one kind or another.

(A.Y.C.F.S.M.)—Sono Sigmo. It's the Sig Lodge where the Right Straight Relt rules. Post summer back early and head straight for Tunbridge. "I didn't say that I was a natural read head." Hoggar the Warrior King returns with beads, sandals, and that elusive quality called "Style." A valid attempt is made at resurrecting the house (body paint comes into vogue). Rush, and "I've never met so many sincere and gentle guys in my entire life." (Close Gigi, but no cupped doll). Slow Joe pulls in 21 pieces of furniture, and on the fourth night can of polish. Pillarman Nahall returns from Hubbard to add a little color, via flower power to the rush meetings. It's football season, and Bean plays end as Burke boots on National T.V. (Moonlight just boots). The fall rage is on and honeys and punches take precedence; 75's BlossOms, and Morphopunch all guaranteed to mutate your date. Watch the Rippin' sweet one, it destroys your body. The good blind dates put in an appearance, and the Golden Gate Bridge takes top honors. Plaguer hits the jackpot as the Sailor comes through with a honey that not only looks the part . . . spontaneous trips only go to show that "This is the United States, and we have good times over here."

Colby is invaded and the third floor suite rocks. Bean snows the honeys: Charlotte, Luce, and . . . Milinda? The Phantom Bagman continues to strike, and Puterman returns with the good Grams (meet you at Sby, Sford). Mike coaches as Sue cheers on the team. Later gets $1300 in post season bonuses. Venchure (alias Euben) starts it off, and the whole world grows a beard, or at least a stache. Clank develops a definite Cronkite complex. Debnam fails to come up with the once promised Ripple popsicles, but does manage to come up with a great social schedule. Sky King does everything and works on the problem of rerouting Loring's passages to his ears.

Winter comes and the Bagmeister and his apprentice work at Stowe missing the biggest bag of all time: Cranker schusses and booms, and the Fast Tomato becomes the Slow Ketchup. J.G.P. continues his famous career and leads the hunyuks through the fall into winter and the inevitable James Hopgoods. The Eggman tries, but ends up cracking under the pressure. Carnival comes. The monster slide takes precedence over the statue. Relt makes it with Trek Woman II.

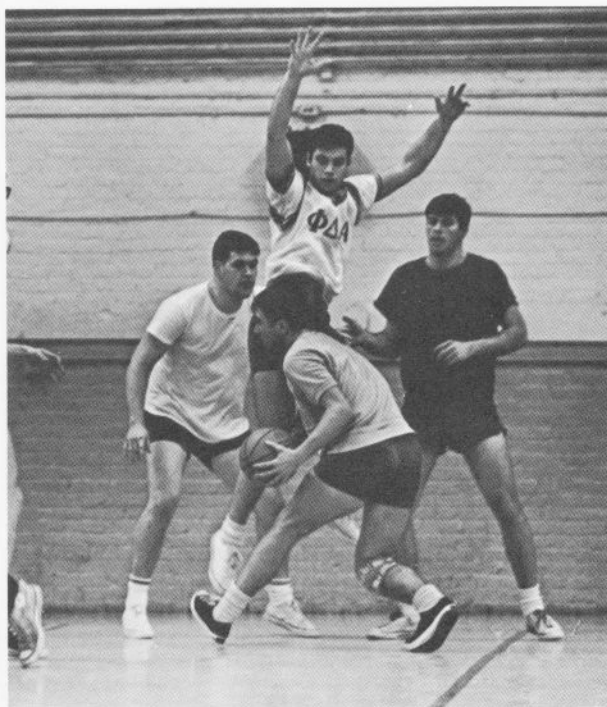

With spring comes the warmth, cycles, lacrosse games, and the waning of those select individuals referred to as "Seniors." In the fall our motto became "Set Your Brain at Zero" and no one has made it above .03 since then.

The good years? The best years. Not so much a place as an experience. The old leave making way for the new. It's always good times, but it's never the same.

Phi Sigma Psi

We bid final adieu to Dudley and Co. The pledges learn a few old Phi Psi traditions. Uni's are featured. Stuie, Hink and Dave are administered the last rites, with Jasper, Thumper, and Fast Jamie close behind. Margie pops to question to Goober. Hayseed, Lag Goller, and Zooka do economics research into the fluctuations in salad dressing prices on Sundays, only to discover that it's not something that can be measured in dollars and cents. We meet the Dean, discover we're one of the four or five, and talk about images.

Things return to normal as Phudd investigates functions and items. Larry can't find a nick-name and Shadow discovers he still has to drink to have a good time. Danny takes care of the bro at Conn. Uncle Maurice, Genie, Zamboni, Roger, and Marge, and Jack the Ripple all put in appearances as the tube features Dark Shadows, Uncle Gus, and Roller Derby. Bro old and new, led by Moon, lunch and sup at the Latrine initiation fiasco.

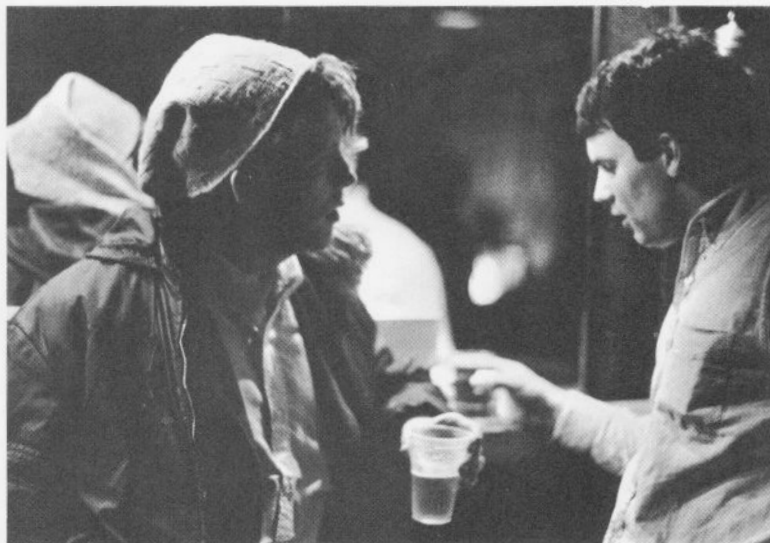

Parker Brothers release its newest game "Becker." We receive word that one of us has become all hands and arms. DeGaulle trades Nanook and Townie for Waldo and a four-pack while Orlando goes to Canada, Graham and Rod go skiing, and D.G. and Hubie go to Skidmore via Green Mountain. The ABC and the Black-shirts form a coalition for the first time in history as Rocco wins the Thresher twice and Terrible Tom captures the coveted Benedict Arnold Award. Bru abandons the rugby field in favor of the Courts. John and Maggot play popcorn-ball, declaring it "all time." Brothers reach new heights in the social arts. Nostalgia once again creeps into the Sacred Shrine as the brothers begin to realize that when June arrives so will their last chance to see Harriet ruin a rug. If all they have in future years to remind them of "House-city" is a copy of the '68 composite perhaps some explanation should accompany these somewhat misleading pictures.

Witz did not hate the world, nor was Rem clean-cut. That was and still is Jake's real nose. Box does have a knife in his hand. Willie is watching Kirk undress. Fred did have to borrow a razor for the occasion. There really was a guy named Squirrel who spent the winter frozen under the rink. Ziembo was having a train wreck when the photographer took the picture. Parkinson was smiling only because he just found out from Rusty just what bears really do in the woods. Tharinger and Rich did use the same pair of sideburns for the picture. Floyd was sitting in Gorkie's lap and Knapper did have a beer in his hand. Schweitzer and Peirce were taking lessons in love from Birnie. Monk was the reason for the "preppy" image. Ingersoll was having a "think" drunk. Tommy's tie was actually spliced; Jack bit it off in a typical moment. Sluggo and not Harry was the mascot, nor was Peter Werner Levi. Sandy and Bob did use the stairs to get to the third floor, where it was true that Swiftie did run an Arthur Murray studio. But most important of all, as Harriet's spots faces and as the composite yellows with age, the spirit of the place did exist and it will remain with us.

Preots, Blunch, Gremmie, and Master Battin are in but not so deep. And Woody, Martyed himself at Smith. You can't hate it! Grassy Noel, Scott Paper Scholar, got wiped at Tuck. Alas, no more double-inverted, black-and-white, boswell garrities. Our Krotchity minority representative took an early leave to accept a position as top gouger at the Warsaw Country Club. New Vistas have also opened for Barts and Bubbles. Per soared to greater lengths. Fast Eddy's efforts ended in the Carnival A. J. Foyt Award. Thomas tinkered in some thermal expansion problems in postgraduate mathematics. Black Max had another personality change, renounced his cynicism, and aligned with Johnson on Vietnam, while Dave Stanley, white knight without a lance became a flower child. Al Smith traded in his fire-power for flower-power with the CIA—right Al? Tom McCormack, brandishing his shillelagh stick, headed for the libs. Ho, censored, Ho! Ricky, a fellow Senior, got library hours for his horse. Right, cakes! Hemery, still trying to finance his sophomore extravaganzas, is selling post issues of SI in California. It was all over for T-Bopper Ted when he had to rally for the Daybreak show. Has anybody seen Hank Paulson since "Young Blood?" For that matter, has anybody seen the pledge class at all?

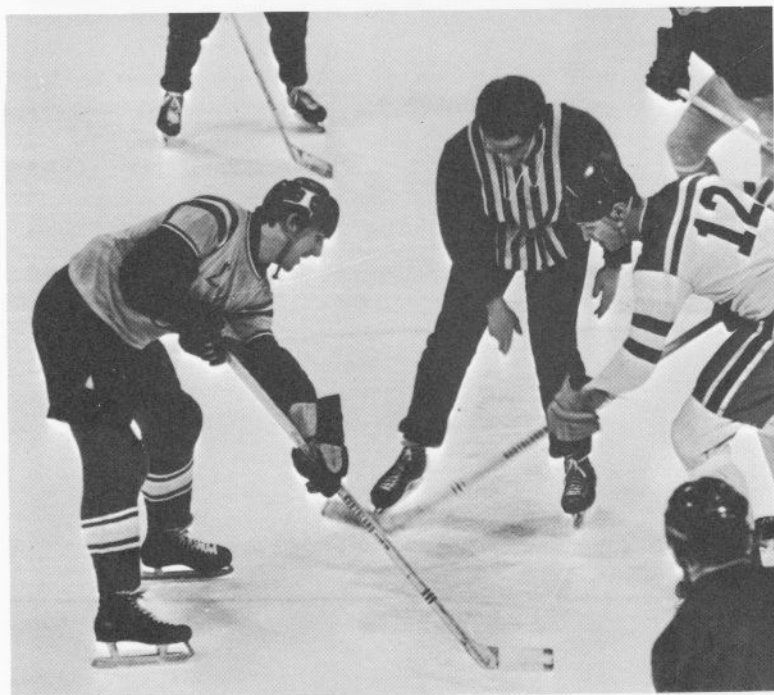

Sink night blitz, straight-arrow nix, he's got the whole world in his hands . . . the machine stalled, the auctioneer called, going once—going twice—Os? . . . thwarted pledge coup, general principles, would you believe Preotle's mother . . . JJ to Oregon, Beryl to Vasser, everyone out for volleyball . . . Henery's $'parties, CT shot by BB, Christmas cheer for f-i-n-a-l-s . . . mixed-up hell night, Avelone's whale, snow palace smiled on Carnival . . . Each year a few lines are devoted to the people in these pictures. Individually, they are Dartmouth student, even Ivy Leaguers. Collectively, they are fraternity brothers. King Leo again ruled in his usual impeccable style when he was not busy with his harem of beauties. Randall McElrath did prove that football players can have red hair, as well as being dynamic house presidents. Kegan sold out his donut franchise midway through the year but his spirit of ecumenism prevails. Sheppe spent his most fruitful hours at the Hop while the Narz was busy running laps between the house and baseball field. Kamp's smile added a sparkle to anything around him, but for Linc most of the year was without hope. Mugsy gave us bigger and better parties and suggested that we all enlist in the project buddy plan the Army has named after him. For Ford, all was "well." When he wasn't busy in Boston, or even when he was, Pat showed his good side to better advantage. In fact, it's tough to count the number of times. We could say he led a rather "Blissful" existence. Tony fiddled with math equations when not involved in some philosophical problems of transcendence, while Don was busy most of the year popping flash bulbs in unsuspecting faces. He hopes his new TV show "How to Live With a Spook" will perhaps someday win an Emmy. Chud when not living up to his more famous nickname was usually seen putting up hoops for the lodge in the gym. Pete, when not plugging the house on DCR, was hitting a lot of pipes in hockey games. Between vacuuming the Sub Shop and janitoring at 12 Webster Ave., Roach cleaned up all year. The Rif proved to be a nugget in the rough finally, moving into the hallowed halls, while Brooksies again proved that even a jolly man can keep a house running efficiently, pianos not withstanding.

The football weekends, the G.A.U., the parties and the girls are gone, but not forgotten. Some of us will be back, some of us won't. But all will remember the Moose.

The year began, as most do, with the brotherhood returning to the ramshackle but beloved lodge. Perhaps we should all have known that it would be a strange year when Thompson ran rush with coed assistance. But the year went at times very strangely and at times very predictably. Dolph struck out the side against Holyoke and then just "crunched" along. Jaeger took secretarial lessons on a correspondence course from Cambridge School. Ferd undertook the presidency of the hard core, and then was impeached. Jones supplied the hard core, and offered libations for the rest of us. Roger punted the whole year, and left the rest of the house in the dust both at the books and on the football field. Ginder provided us with an orphan—with parents even. Spider had the chance to—but left it in the woods north of Hanover. Snyder passed off DDA jackets and a limitless supply of pins. When Middleton got a vest from Rochester, he nearly wore it out on Saturday nights. Choo katahbolized grandly, and the Saunders wore out the road to Green Mountain. Connelly showed us movies of the football field and of Sunday of Houseparties. Davis, Brown, and Grad had a personal confrontation with the Impossible Missions Force. Bort loaned his room out for Christmas vacation—and returned to find a token of thanks waiting for him. Cogswell spent the year battling with the maniac on the third floor who wouldn't let anyone book. Morg played the lead guitar and Odeneal played the field. Pilling left for the Hop. And Clark was supposed to be somewhere overseas, but he wouldn't answer our letters, so we never found out. Migs came and went. Boorum was his usual charming self and kept the house running with a mixture of sweet cavolings and whispered niceties.

When everything was said and done, it was both an ordinary and extraordinary year. Ordinary with parties, exams, and long meetings. Extraordinary with our first full year as a local, a college football championship, an orphan, a color tube, a new coat of paint, and other things. But for each person in the fraternity it was in some way a memorable year. And so, in most ways, it was a memorable one for the house with the lobsters on the door.

First row: A. Brown, J. Langley, G. Campbell, J. Anderson, J. Oplinger, M. Lewis, S. Reeves, T. Means, J. March, R. Shepherd, P. Docherty, D. Foster, D. Broadwater, S. Clagett, R. Talley, B. Lockhart, T. Conklin, B. Bergesch, B. Griffith, J. Scott, J. Ruddock, D. Stringham, L. Rosenfield.

"Good morning Mr. Brown. The picture you are now holding is of the twenty-six Tabards that returned for rush. This motley group of social outcasts has been terrorizing the community of Hanover, N. H. for the past year. Your mission, Al, should you decide to accept it, is to Rebuild This House. As always, should you or any of your Rush Committee Force be caught or killed, the Corporation shall disavow any knowledge of your actions. A warning, Al—this fraternity may self-destruct in four days." On this note, Alvin's RC Force swung into action and sank twenty-seven pledges (Signu sank one for us).

The porch sagged, as did 'ternity 'thusiasm. Pledges complain of house apathy, but decide if you can't beat 'em, join 'em while in a last ditch retaliatory bid, Ernie souls-in, secures trick nape as Walt grooves. Pockets fires down 38, does 40 on the beach, and picks out 18. Seniors see C. C. as P. T. drops a D. T. as everyone knows. Hugo's date was resting while he rallies, discovering the Gitsis, but whatsis . . . Musgrove offers more; nevertheless, "it looks like Grota to me."

Ogelsdorf extorts frozen spheres as halfmoon works on the sticky problem of alumni relations with Sue Scroom and then Bros barter blood, bring Babs back from the Bay, but Barbie blows in from Bucharest. Ricky receives Gwen's Girl Scout pin. Bobbit-Jo whiffs and fits, but now everyone has seen Sheps about Hayes whose troth is told as the Sunshine Pills Corp. fades. Hoffoff gives us, graphically, the guidelines, but fails to tame megalopolis and Phoon-tang just does not try but meets Dienbienphu; PxP does not approve, so Fetch, Rusty.

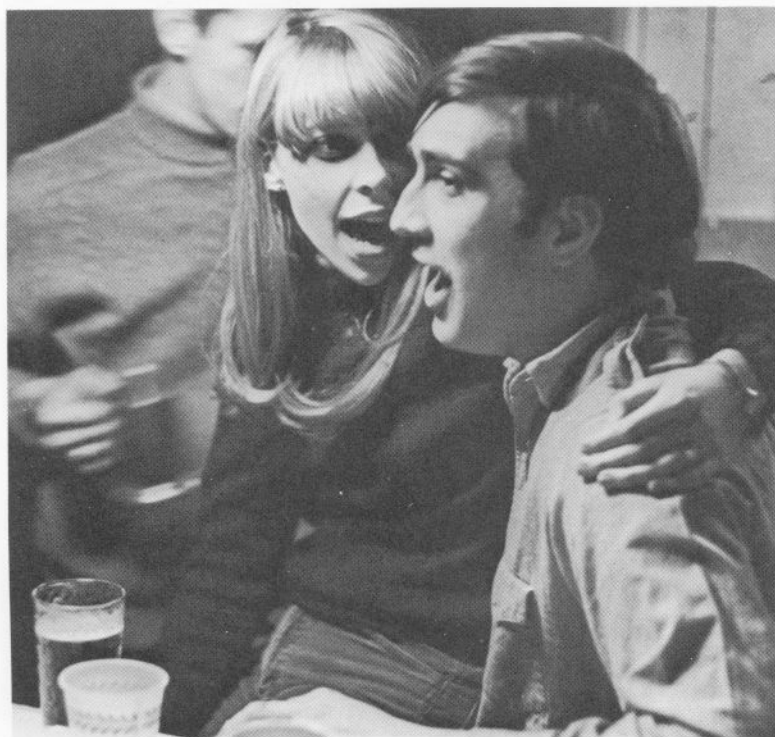

Since Pommel looks for flowers and finds a Koala Rocat ice fall pleasing but "what's going on here?" . . . and so Duper wiches and C45 predicted for ST as is the whole sale evacuation of TM 7 to the tune of "Anchors Aweigh." SSSSSSS . . snap snap snap.

The year got started out with a bang, followed by a whimper. Bart and Ruthie got married and settled in Lyme. Following suit with high diamonds were Jim and Iris. (today a pair, tomorrow a full house?) Jack and Elaine (after years of uncertainty they finally got together) and Rich and Karen. Rud came out of the kitchen long enough to sink Donica, and Lee "Thanks for the Money, Guys" Friedman made the scene with a ring.

Incidentally, speaking of scene, Bruce is going to be a doctor! Eff the Greek gives him 8 to 5 on his first year. Dave "Nothing Personal But Did you Catch Any" Sigelman is going to specialize in gynecology. That's one way, Doggie. Joe "Who Says Italians Are Greasy" Parrillo rushed twenty made schools but couldn't get into Smith. Ain't that a wopper?

Rumor has it that Rich Livingston is a funny guy. Clovsky's giving 3 to 1 against it. Sobel moved the temple to Saratoga. Anthony and Scoville converted. John Anderson stole the house heater, and Farrand got steamed up. John "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way through Wyoming" Hamer was heard to remark "You should have seen that truck. It really broke me up." Wiebs is the proud father of a new baby grinder. Cheese, what a ham!

Hart was the house jock, but now he needs more help. Rumor is that Jon Mark's growing a goatee. That's a laugh. Reider smiled, Elaine left. Hamer smiled, Elaine left. Eric A. became Ernie L. Young came back from Spain to drink. Nadelberg came back to show him how.

Hiram Segwick Cody, III. R. Gordon Willets. Fred Rick Pabst, Dana Carroll Durgin, W. Rudkin Porter, Jr.

Swede spent a nice Year's at home (?) Is Buxbaum really 40. OREGON'S GOING TO BE A TAILOR! Everyone gathered around yelling "Stu! Stu!" Is Willets really running? Is Chuck Anderson really over the hill? "Can I have a Winston, Charlie?" Who is this man called Tyson? What kind of Bro' are you talking about, Sloan? Glovsky's insured with Lloyd's of Williams? How come that tank's full of oil? How come those pipes are full of ice?

The answer is Labraia Tar Pits.

... So here's my heart ... This picture is really THE NOTORIOUS NECRICK BROTHERS in disguise: the back row is full of jocks, while the rest are "retired has-beens" ... The new look of the Lodge was a shock to us all this fall; most of us expected B.H.C.P. Memorial Field to be adorned with Pollock globes. We disguised for Rush in our preppiest tweeds, but as usual, it didn't work. On that Spring Rush on Sun and Surf'. Mr. Boomer (son of Muss etc.) swamied us into 20 or so festering of whoop—nothing new. The Shank was first to spot Rudy KaZudy. Iggy, back from the land of the Sloped Head, did a great job on Alumni Weekend. Many of the Boys' faces were seen on the Big Green Machine, or was it just the South Fayer 'tail? Harvard weekend was a smash for Wells, but he still made it back for the Lax spring trip. It's rumored that O. B. is in love. Yuk it up Shank. We missed the Frymobile Excursion Liner, but Sargeant Green stood by us in spirits. Rabbitt was last seen walking abreast with a bear; so now we know what Doug's been trying to tell us for the last three years! God would like to cite Kathy Graham. BoVille swapped his blue tennies at Trader Vic's Emporium; Terworth was incensed with the whole idea and Mystical Timothy Tebbitts nodded with approval. Pumps upheld all traditions and even found a 'ter 'val date at the Christmas Party (Jonas' present). Mac returned from California with new ideas for 'Namararena. Schmere handled his V.P. duties gracefully from the Corner. It's not the pale moon that excites me." P. Cock fell off Sun and Surf in his usual drunken stupor. Hatfield caught him way back into The Lodge. Hinman skipped merrily through his four year, and Barbara discovered the 'Cormick was indeed the spice of life. The Warden say that Two Time Loser Long's parole will coincide with Ramsdell Bowl. Watch out for that fourth green! We last saw the raft speeding down the Omi Deut Chute with Foley at the healm, naked policemen followed. It's been a good three years and we're all still around. The Lodge will fall before we do.

P. S. Rumor has it that Derricks is alive and well in Argentina.
